Wilmington to stay with Reading Light

Wilmington will not have to start its own power company.

An agreement has been reached between the Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD) and the town of Wilmington, following 11 long months of negotiations. It appears that the agreement will solve the long-standing dispute between the two sides.

According to The Daily Times Chronicle, in Reading it is being termed "an historic agreement." But it will not be official until all four member towns (Reading, Wilmington, North Reading, and Lynnfield) sign the contract.

The highlights of the agreement are:

- All four towns will share in-lieu-of-tax payments. The payments will only be guaranteed for two years, pending legislation being passed on Beacon Hill to allow "above the line" payments after the two year period is up. Wilmington will receive annual payments of $100,000 for each of the two years, a sum which just about covers the total expenses Wilmington has incurred in its fight with the electric company.

- Reading's street lighting rates will be raised to what the other three towns are now paying, in the interest of making rates more equitable.

- A Citizens Advisory Committee will be formed to afford member towns a chance to offer input into the decision making process.

- Any of the four towns wishing to leave the system will have to give RMLD advance notice.

Wilmington Selectman Jim Stewart, who served as part of the town's negotiating team with Selectmen Chairman Robert Cain, told the Town Crier Tuesday that "all in all it's a very good agreement."

Stewart went on to add that "I think it's a fair deal for everyone. It gives Reading a chance to have all four towns purchasing power through them and it gives Wilmington resolution to the three issues that it had problems with from the beginning."

Stewart explained that under the in-lieu-of-tax portion of the proposal, Wilmington is entitled to 65 percent of the monies going back to the towns. The monies will be taken "above the line" to allow Reading Light to put it on their operating expenses. As an example of the impact to Wilmington, added Stewart, if a 20 year contract is signed, it could mean that Wilmington would be entitled to slightly over $5,000,000 in that period.

With the formation of an advisory committee, members would provide input to the light board on such issues as operating and capital budgets, rate-making, and power contracts. However, RMLD will not be legally bound to incorporate any of the suggestions of the board. The board will operate on an annual budget of $15,000. Stewart said though he and Cain proposed Wilmington fill two seats on the committee, all the towns will make the final decision regarding membership.

The initial dispute between RMLD and Wilmington started a half dozen years ago when members of the board of directors of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce reviewed the figures on the cost of electric power in Wilmington. Some directors and some selectmen then attended a meeting of the RMLD, but they were not given the opportunity to speak, despite the fact that Wilmington is the largest consumer of power with Reading Light. The dispute became public and eventually other members were elected to the light board after Wilmington threatened to start its own electric power company.

State law written many years ago provided that a community could

Kane explains letter of inquiry

by Arlene Surprenant

A letter of inquiry written by three members of the Wilmington Home and School Association last spring has become an issue in the contest for Bridget Zukas' vacant seat on the Wilmington School Committee. One of the signers of the letter, former association president Peggy Kane, is one of four residents seeking appointment for the remainder of Zukas' term. The other applicants are former committeeman Phil Fenton, finance committee member Brad Jackson, and James Doucette, who ran unsuccessfully in the last election.

The main thrust of the letter written to District Attorney Scott Harshbarger and Attorney General James Shannon was to question the school committee's methods of operation and members' practice of holding so many executive sessions, some of which may be illegal. A side issue brought up by Kane, Chris DeHoff, and Joan Grady was the selection of Harold Kowal as the committee's attorney. The women felt there might have been a possible conflict of interest since it was rumored Kowal was Supt. Bill Fay's personal and business lawyer. Fay has denied that this is true. The women also maintain there was little discussion of Kowal's selection in the minutes. Though it was suggested information be sent to the State Ethics Commission, the issue remains unresolved since Kane said no minutes have been made available after April 12.

Kane told the Town Crier this week the reason for the letter was "to know our rights as citizens and taxpayers."

"We were simply questioning and no accusations were made," claimed Kane, adding that the whole issue was one of ethics and seeing that business was conducted in the public eye. In this she agreed with committee member Shirley Callan, who also questioned her own board's operations in a letter to the District Attorney.

Some people have recently questioned Kane's motives in seeking a seat on the very school board under investigation. Kane, a teacher in the Medford School System, denies she has any underlying motives. She also denies rumors that she will attempt to oust Fay from his position as superintendent if appointed to the board.

"I think it's amusing that they (her detractors) think I have so much power. This is incredible. Bill Fay is our superintendent. That's the end of it," she said. Kane went on to add that her main concern at this point is the middle school and curriculum development. She said because the middle schools "have been in turmoil for years," and so many eighth graders leave the Wilmington system prior to entering high school, the committee should spend more time focusing on the all-important intermediate level and ways to keep students in the system.

"I think we have a wonderful high school. We need to build up the positive and keep our kids here," she said.

The big push

Custodian Jim Downs and Principal Paul Fleming clown it up as they get ready for the start of school on Sept. 6th. "It's an all new school," Fleming said in an earlier interview. "The whole school has been refurbished top to bottom. They've done an excellent job."

Cutbacks evident when school opens

by Arlene Surprenant

Several changes will face students when they start back to school September 6. The first obvious change will be in transportation. Instead of the usual 15 buses servicing all levels, there will be 10 buses servicing a growing elementary population and nine buses for the secondary students. Many students living less than a mile from school will find themselves walking this fall.

According to School Supt. Bill Fay, "a great deal of effort" went into drawing up the routes and checking them out in terms of timing, location, and safety. Athletic Director Jim Gillis and Supt. Fay, in conjunction with Safety Officer Bobby Shelley and the school principals, worked together to come up with the routes.

A second change will be the lack of supplies and materials in each school. Fay said, as in parochial schools, the students will now be expected to provide many of their own supplies if there isn't enough on hand, due to recent budget reductions. However, even with those cutbacks and fiscal constraints, Fay said he is "convinced we'll be in good shape come opening day."

At Wilmington High, school will begin earlier than last year at 7:30 a.m. and let out at 2 p.m. to accommodate the bus schedule. The intermediate schools will begin their day at 7:40 a.m. and the elementary level will start at 9 a.m.

A few changes will be evident at the high school. All windows should all be installed by opening day giving the building a uniform, clean appearance. In terms of the windows, all asbestos has been removed, said Fay, and the entire ceiling in room 106 has been replaced.

Though few new teachers will grace the halls of the Wilmington schools this fall, three of the seven will be working at the high school level. William Kates, a graduate of Boston College, has been hired to work in the high school resource room. Marybeth Smith will handle the duties of early childhood instructor while Susan Zraket will teach music at the intermediate and high school buildings.

Residents will soon be able to make deposits and cash checks through the new branch of a local bank, to be situated at Wilmington High. Under the auspices of the school's business department, students will learn the intricacies of banking and offer people like senior citizens and local teachers a chance to bank at the school. Fay said the new undertaking should get off the ground within 30 to 60 days. Also new this year will be an early childhood center located on

Textron wins $1m tax case

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington's Town Manager Buzz Stapeczynski announced Tuesday the town would appeal a recent decision of the State Appellate Tax Board. The board found that the town had over-charged Textron by approximately one million dollars, including interest. The property is what was for many years the Avco plant on Lowell Street.

The board's finding reduced the $46 million assessed value of the nine-building, 823,000 square foot complex to an average fair market value of $31 million or $38 per square foot of building area. Textron's attorney John Lynch, of the Boston firm of Cuddy, Lynch, Manzi, and Bixby, said that the tax board's decision saved the company 33 percent of the taxes levied by the community over three tax years.

According to Principal Assessor Tony Krzeminski, the whole issue was initiated by an appraisal company from Pennsylvania, which offered to file cases for local companies which felt they were being over-assessed. The cases were reportedly filed at no initial cost to the companies.

The reason for the big discrepancy in his assessment and the tax board's, explained Krzeminski, has to do with the fact that attorneys for Textron compared Avco's value to that of 87 comparable properties in other states. The only problem with that, said Krzeminski, is that Lynch contends that Avco is a warehouse rather than the research and development lab that Krzeminski claims it is.

Stapeczynski told this paper the town still believes the property was fairly assessed.

"It is obviously something we're going to have to fight," said the town manager. He maintained there were some issues of law that the board overlooked, including the classification of Avco as a warehouse.

"My question to Avco is, a warehouse for what? People?" asked the town manager, with a hint of sarcasm.

The town was represented on the case by attorney Joe Dalton. According to Stapeczynski, if the town loses the appeal, the impact could eventually be felt by the taxpayer.

Other local companies, including G.E., Polyvinyl, Raffi and Swanson, and St. Lawrence Cement, have filed similar suits in court. Fort Howard Paper recently lost its assessment case against the town. Another case brought by Keene Lighting was thrown out of court on a procedural matter, added Stapeczynski.

Former superintendent weds reading director

by Arlene Surprenant
A large contingent of Wilmington residents was present last Saturday to celebrate the nuptials of former school superintendent Robert Horan and Wilmington's Reading Director Brenda Squire.

The wedding, which took place at Saunders on the Rye Ocean in Rye, New Hampshire at 12:30 p.m., was described as an "intimate, very elegant" ceremony by school committee member Andrea Paglia. The exchange of vows took place on the deck of the restaurant overlooking Rye Harbor.

According to Paglia, the bride wore a mid-length dress of ivory satin with a drop waist and applied bodice and a simple flower in her hair. The groom was garbed in the traditional black tuxedo. Lorraine Kalil, Wilmington's Director of Performing and Fine Arts, attended the bride.

During the afternoon reception, guests dined on a hot and cold buffet which included roast chicken and a side of beef. A piano player provided background music.

Besides Paglia, guests included school committeemen Shirley Callan, former committeemen Bob Peterson and Linda McMenimen, teacher Patty Lynch, and principal Bob Coffill. Wilmington's current superintendent William Fay was invited but did not attend.

The couple left immediately after the reception for a four day honeymoon in Las Vegas. They will reside in Wells, Maine.

Horan is currently working on a dissertation for his doctorate while the new Mrs. Horan will return to her job as reading director.

Fire lieutenant wins appeal of charge

by Arlene Surprenant
Firefighter's Union #1370 won a victory in court last week when Judge Harold Flannery, of Middlesex Superior Court, upheld a civil service decision concerning Lt. Joseph Lundergan of the Wilmington Fire Department.

According to Town Counsel Alan Altman, the town found Lundergan "deficient in his duties in command of the fire station and in dispatch of equipment to the Spirits home" the night school committeeman Mitchell Spirits died of a heart attack.

Union attorney Neil Rossman said Town Manager Buzz Stapeczynski, the town's appointing authority, had reduced Lundergan to the rank of firefighter and ordered him to "punishment training" as a result of the finding. The Civil Service Commission, however, reversed Stapeczynski's decision leading the town to appeal that decision to superior court. Rossman explained that the union then submitted a counter-claim stating the town had no justification for its appeal and asking that Lundergan be returned to his "rightful rank."

Rossman said that in last week's decision, the judge refuted the town's arguments and stated that the town's refusal to restore Lundergan's rank was "petty lawlessness."

Wilmington recycling to begin October 14

by Arlene Surprenant
Plans are moving forward to kick off Wilmington's effort to recycle some of its waste and save taxpayers' dollars in the process.

According to Assistant Town Manager Jeff Hull, who heads the Recycling Advisory Committee, the weekend of October 14 is the tentative date chosen to begin the town's recycling program. On that weekend and each weekend thereafter, residents will be encouraged to drop off their aluminum containers, bottles, and newspapers in two roll-offs or bins at the old Main Street site on the Woburn line. Beginning October 21, residents may also drop off their leaves at the composting area behind the bins. The recycling center will be open Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sundays from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

At their meeting last Thursday, committee members said they would like to involve the neighbors in their plans in some way. They also said they plan to look into possible traffic problems with cars exiting and entering the center.

A site walk is planned for this Thursday at 6 p.m. to look at the layout of the center.

By now we assume that every financially competent person knows the need for a will to distribute assets according to desire instead of state law or the whim of a court-appointed guardian. Just as basic - and much easier to handle by yourself - is the document locator. This is just a simple letter that tells your heirs how to find necessary documents and assets.

Where is your will? Your insurance policies, including group policies (list company name, face amount and policy number, beneficiaries)? Recent income tax returns, house deed, your military discharge papers? What about business agreements, leases, car title?

Help your executor locate your assets: list the names and addresses of financial institutions where you have savings, checking, or investment accounts, the numbers of the accounts and the names on them. Note where account statements, passbooks and securities are. Include necessary information on your safe-deposit box.

MISTAKES TO AVOID

Owners of small businesses generally make four common errors when selecting agents and insurers. The first of these involves the false assumption that all agents and insurers perform their services in a comparable manner. One survey shows that only 20 percent of small business owners (or their agents) shopped for insurance, even though insurance can vary greatly both in price and quality. Another error involves the failure to check the financial stability of an insurer. The third most common mistake made by those in small businesses involves switching agents and insurers too frequently. This practice may lead to small savings in premiums, but may jeopardize insurance availability. Lastly, using too many insurance agents at once makes it difficult to coordinate an insurance program or promote any incentive for better service.

Insurance is a complicated business requiring expertise and first hand knowledge to be able to function successfully within its framework. At SPINELLI INSURANCE AGENCY, INC., 90 Woburn St., Wilmington, we are trained professionals in the area of insurance. Your best value in insurance is representative of an agency that has extensive market capabilities. This means the ability to select the best coverage available from the major carriers to meet your individual needs. The philosophy of our agency is one of service to the client. Let us provide you with the quality service and professional insurance required to provide you with both security and peace of mind. To reach us, call 658-5064.

Ernie Boudreau, of Rhodes St., Wilmington is lucky. He was the passenger in the back seat of a 87 Pontiac driven by David Gidari of Qunicy St., Wilmington. Although another passenger, Lisa Gidari sustained multiple injuries, Boudreau's feet were only pinned under the front seat. Once firefighters freed him, he climbed out the back window, across the trunk and onto the waiting stretcher. According to the police report, the driver, David Gidari lost control of the car rounding the curve on Glen Road near Main St and struck a telephone pole broadside. The accident occurred about 2 a.m. Monday. He was cited for operating under the influence of alcohol, speeding and operating to endanger.

School committee accepts Bridget Zukas' resignation

by Arlene Surprenant
The Wilmington School Committee officially accepted, with regret, the resignation of nine year veteran Bridget Zukas at their meeting last Wednesday.

Zukas had resigned two weeks ago for personal reasons. The board had tabled their decision to accept the resignation to give Zukas a chance to reconsider. To date, four people, James Doucette, Phil Fenton, Brad Jackson, and Peggy Kane, have applied for her unexpired term on the board.

Committeemen had nothing but praise for the long term member who had a way of speaking her mind on the board. They referred to her as an "advocate of children," a "very caring person," and someone who "made us laugh."

"With Mrs. Zukas' resignation, we've seen the end of one era of education," noted Chairman Bob Surran.

In a moving tribute addressed to Zukas, Shirley Callan said "life may go on, but it may not be quite the same without you."

Under the appointment process to fill a vacancy, selectmen and school committee members meet and select a new official by a majority vote of both boards. The new appointee fills the unexpired term but has to run in the next election.

Committeemen directed Surran to notify the selectmen of the vacancy and to advertise for a week to fill the position. Callan made a motion not to read letters from applicants until the advertising period is up. Committeemen agreed with her motion.

School lunch prices increase to $1.10

Parents will have to dig a little deeper in their pockets this year to pay a slight increase in the cost of hot lunch at the secondary and elementary school levels.

Beginning this fall, prices will increase from one dollar to $1.10 at the high school and intermediate schools and from ninety cents to $1.10 at the elementary schools. The new price includes dessert.

Members of the Wilmington School Committee expressed some concern last week for those parents who can't afford the increase but who are not eligible for assistance. Director Anne Quinn assured the committee "we never, ever have a child go hungry."

The food service is self-supporting with the lunch price paying for food, equipment, and the cafeteria workers' salaries.

John DeMarco said the increase was in keeping with new lunch prices in neighboring communities. The board voted unanimously to go along with the raise.

Title cleared on Everett Avenue site

by Arlene Surprenant
A glitch in the development of an affordable home on Everett Avenue has apparently been cleared up and work is back on track this week.

The glitch concerned the transfer of the town-owned site to the non-profit Wilmington Community Development Corporation. According to WCDC President Bob DiPalma, he was notified by the Commercial Bank and Trust Co. last week that they couldn't grant the corporation a mortgage until the title to the property is clear. DiPalma said, unknown to his group, the original owner's name still appeared on the deed. The property had been taken by the town for back taxes and the town was ready to turn over the parcel to the corporation in exchange for a low cost home. Town Counsel Alan Altman went to land court Monday to clear up the matter and register the deed so the funding could be released.

"This should have been foreseen," said DiPalma, who hastened to add though that "there never was any danger of losing it totally."

Town Manager Buzz Stapeczynski agreed.

"This was one of those grey areas that we wanted to correct 100 percent so there would be no problem and we could secure the cleanest possible title," said Stapeczynski. He added that the problem cropped up in June and he notified DiPalma of the "procedural matter" six weeks ago.

DiPalma maintains he had been surprised and upset when he was notified by the bank there was a problem with the deed. But, he added, the important thing now is to move forward to meet the tight timeframe and get a foundation in the ground so students from the Shawsheen Tech can begin construction in September.

Mortgage papers signed for affordable home

Mortgage construction papers were signed in Lowell last Thursday for a three bedroom affordable home to be located at 8 Everett Avenue, Wilmington. The home is to be on a 10,000 foot lot, with both water and sewer services, on property owned by the town.

The Wilmington Community Development Corporation, non-profit (WCDC) is to be the constructor. The actual construction is to be by the students of Shawsheen Tech, in Billerica. The basic construction cost is estimated at $67 thousand.

The officers of WCDC are Robert A. DiPalma, president; Dennis J. Volpe, vice president; Vaughn R. Surprenant, treasurer; Robert W. Landrigan, secretary, and Mark Lutz, comptroller. All are Wilmington residents.

DiPalma and Landrigan signed for WCDC. Everett Olson, president, signed for the Commercial Bank & Trust.

Olson said that the fees were being kept as low as possible. He regretted that the president of the board of directors, Rocco DePasquale of Wilmington, could not be present.

Buzz Stapeczynski, town manager, was very happy, he said, to see a Wilmington bank involved in the effort. The new affordable home is to be the first home to be built by students of Shawsheen Tech which will not be privately owned.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

My vacation this weekend, all four days of it, held a special message about personal tragedy and the way we deal with people around us who don't fit within the boundaries of normalcy.

This story has a principal character, and for argument sake we'll call him Bob. After traveling the sights of Montreal on Friday we happened upon Bob in the hotel lobby. Meeting him may have been a paradox. Montreal is a beautiful city, with a sort of quaint atmosphere. The people are as friendly as their cuisine is delicious, and in this Quebec metropolis two different cultures and languages, French and English, have peacefully coexisted for hundreds of years.

Montreal is also famous as a celebration capital. Taverns and night clubs run from street to street, and merrymaking goes on through the early morning hours.

Everything is colorful, bright, and happy.

However, in contrast to the abundance of beauty was Bob, a victim of his own circumstance who stood out in this glitzy northern capital in a way which you and I would not envy. In fact, because of our own narrow-mindedness and obsession with beauty, it would be difficult to find a place where Bob would not attract attention; whether he wanted to or not.

Bob's face was disfigured in an unimaginable way. He did not have a nose, but instead a large indentation, or what might be better described as a deep hole. There were also some scars, and the left side of his face was abnormally shaped; but for the most part what hit you instantly in a glance was the flatness of the face and lack of that important feature.

Otherwise, Bob was perfectly normal. From behind you'd never suspect the abnormality. He looked healthy, even athletic. His voice was normal, his eyes bright, and despite his unusual burden in life I believe I noticed a smile or two.

Bob's curse was how people treated him. His friends, who might be better described as simply the people traveling with him, seemed to keep Bob at arms length. It was so obvious that it struck me. There was a group of four, and Bob was almost nudged to the side as they waited for an elevator. He was excluded from conversation -- God forbid that other people think this disfigured kid was their buddy.

As bad as it was, the behavior of those kids is somewhat understandable. They were teenagers, and self-consciousness is part of growing up.

But then there was the adult reaction to Bob and his handicap. We saw him at least a dozen times in the hotel, and he couldn't walk anywhere without people staring; and on one occasion an older woman actually extended her arm and pointed at him, saying loudly enough for me to hear from a distance, "Look at that!"

I was beginning to get disgusted. We were on vacation as apparently Bob and his friends were. But Bob's lot in life made a simple walk through the hotel lobby a terrifying experience. Even worse, for every person that appeared to react to Bob's disfigurement with sympathetic gesture, there was another who gave a look of rejection and fright.

One night as I walked back to my hotel room, a block away from the glitter of St. Catherine Street, I bumped into Bob all alone. Perhaps not recognizing me as a fellow hotel guest he asked how far away the Queen Elizabeth was. I told him he was only a ten minute walk short, and tried to appear as friendly and relaxed as possible when speaking.

Earlier in the night we had seen Bob leaving with his pals, who probably thought they're night club life would be cramped by a "freak". By night's end Bob was alone.

I didn't know Bob was from Boston until our plane landed and I saw him at the Delta baggage pickup. Per usual his friends treated him like an outcast, only to be outdone by someone who must have been his mother. I'm good at picking things up, and I could tell how awkward she felt being with her son in a very crowded, public place.

We all live in a self-conscious world filled with vanity. And sitting from my high perch, perhaps it's easy to condemn the actions of Bob's friends when I didn't have to be Bob's friend myself. In fairness, I might feel awkward bringing someone with that handicap to a club or restaurant.

Then again, I'd like to think I'd atleast make the effort to treat him like a human being. Should everyone make a little more effort and a little less staring, people with handicaps like Bob's could live life with a lot less pain.

Maybe someday Bob will be able to enjoy a vacation.

School committee sidetracked on budget issue

by Larz F. Neilson

Casual observers of the Wilmington political scene might be wondering why there is such a harangue about the filling of one vacant seat on the school committee. After all, a seat on the school committee is just that, not a cabinet-level position in Washington.

Former school committeeman Phil Fenton has been pushing for reappointment to the committee. Three other people are also seeking the post -- Jim Doucette, Brad Jackson and Peggy Kane.

Doucette ran for school committee this spring, but was not elected. Fenton was also a candidate this spring, and he lost by a single vote. Jackson is a member of the Wilmington School Committee, where he has spoken in support of the school budget. Kane is an officer and co-founder of the Wilmington Home and School Association, and is a teacher in Medford.

The filling of the seat has become a game of musical chairs, with six votes needed to win. The choice is to be made by the five selectmen and the six sitting members of the school committee, a total of eleven votes.

If there is anything the school committee does not need right now, it is another divisive issue to take away from what should be "Job Number One" -- the school budget.

With the town facing a cut in state aid to the tune of $800,000, cuts will have to be made in many department budgets. And like it or not, the traditional line-up still holds when it comes to budget time -- town government on one side, school department on the other. There is a cap on how many dollars are available, and each department has a long list of what could be done with the money. With the amount that has to be cut, the town will most likely have to lay off some employees, and this makes the issue of where the cuts will fall vitally important.

Recycle now, before it's too late

by Bill Conlon

Tewksbury's town-wide trash recycling program is working, and expansion of the program is planned. Starting in September, for example, the town will voluntarily ask residents to bring all glass to the DPW building, on the first and third Saturday morning of every month, for separate disposal.

Tewksbury's recycling is based upon economics rather than a sense of planetary duty. The town pays about $62 per ton to haul its garbage to the NESWC trash-to-energy plant in North Andover. The newspaper recycling effort has already saved the town over 50 tons worth of hauling fees for July alone, and that's good. We've much further to go, but economics is a good place to start.

Once upon a time, our forebears thought of this as a huge, wide world, capable of producing boundless riches. Trash was not a real problem -- simply bury it or dump it in the river, to be carried to the infinite ocean. Besides, not much trash was generated, then.

We've changed and learned a lot since then. Our world is hardly infinite. In fact, our planet is a rather small blue speck of life in the infinite reaches of space. From a spacecraft window, we've seen the ends of the Earth. It's much closer than we thought.

But we haven't stopped, or even slowed, our production of trash. Since the turn of the century, our trash production has grown faster at an obscene rate. Today we generate staggering amounts of trash, with nowhere left to put it.

Landfills are being closed everywhere, and the few that remain open are swamped by requests from haulers.

Dumping trash into the sea has gone on for so long that the ocean is starting to throw up. The sad example of hospital needles washing up on the beaches is only a symptom. Most of the trash sinks to the bottom, creating entire reefs of garbage. It doesn't go away.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I am so hopping mad at what people will allow to happen to their little creatures. Who can be so irresponsible as to let cats multiply only to be put out in the cold to starve or be abused?

Cats are not like wild animals. They are domesticated, and they cannot fend for themselves out in the wild. They cannot hibernate when it's freezing cold, and nature does not leave anything out there for them to eat.

I am sick of seeing this happening around town. It just breaks my heart.

Right now I am feeding a beautiful little calico, just past kittenhood, and I am so afraid she will be killed on this busy street. I can't take her into my house because of my other two very territorial cats, or there will be World War Three.

I can't sleep for worrying what will happen to this little kitten-cat.

I would be very grateful if somebody would give her a good home. She is very affectionate and would make a lovely pet. She is playful and follows me around like a little dog.

Don't forget - God didn't put these little ones on earth to be abused.

I am grateful to meet people who take responsibility for these animals like I do, and I hope there is a special place in Hell for anyone who is responsible for their suffering.

Sincerely,
Mary R. Orner

Dear Larz:

We are writing this letter in regard to the appointment of Philip A. Fenton Sr., the man who lost by one vote in the past school committee election. To think that the appointment would be opened to anyone who had not elected to run for the school committee this past April, does not make any sense to us.

It would seem only right to select a person from the three people who took the time to run and did not win. As Wilmington voters we believe that the appointment should be given to Philip A. Fenton. The fact that he lost the election by only one vote should attest to the feelings of the Wilmington voters.

Where is the sense of fair play not to appoint him??? Is our town that political, not to do the right thing??? We really hope not.

Yours very truly,
Anne (Ritchie) Coates
Thomas Coates

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I am writing in support of Philip Fenton's candidacy to fill the unexpired term caused by the resignation of Bridget Zukas from the Wilmington School Committee.

I find it unconscionable that the school committee and the board of selectmen would consider any other candidates for this vacancy in light of Mr. Fenton's one vote defeat in the April 1989 general election.

Mr. Fenton's past record of service to the Town of Wilmington speaks for itself, and his narrow defeat in April should assure him of the opportunity to fill this vacancy left by Mrs. Zukas until such time as the electorate speaks as to a permanent replacement.

Each of the applicants for this vacancy had ample opportunity to become a candidate prior to the general elections of 1989 but each, with the exception of Mr. Fenton, elected not to do so. In addition, each of these applicants, including Mr. Fenton, may elect to become candidates in April of 1990. Thus, the only fair approach is to allow Mr. Fenton to serve the remainder of Mrs. Zukas' term.

Very truly yours,
Robert G. Peterson

Dear Larz:

I'm writing to endorse the candidacy of Philip A. Fenton Sr. to fill the vacancy which now exists on the Wilmington School Committee. As a past commander of American Legion Post 136, I personally know of the countless hours of unselfish devotion of time which Phil Fenton has devoted to the youth of Wilmington through American Legion Post 136's scouting program. Many hundreds of the youth in Wilmington have directly benefited from the 16 years of service to the community of Wilmington through Phil Fenton's dedicated service.

After watching the school committee meeting of August 23, 1989, I came away with the feeling that Phil Fenton Sr. might not be selected for the appointment to the school committee and therefore am writing this letter of support. It is my opinion that the people of Wilmington spoke in the election of April 1989 and Phil lost by only one vote, which should make him the obvious person to be appointed to the vacancy which now exists. I think that it is only fair to appoint Philip A. Fenton Sr. to this vacancy.

Sincerely,
Anastasia Macinnis

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

Since my family and I were on vacation in Maine when Kevin Sowyrda was trying to reach me for my comments regarding the vacant school committee seat, I would like to take this opportunity to respond.

Last spring I did not run for a seat on the school committee for three reasons. First, I was President of the WSHA and I had made that commitment through June. Next, I was taking three courses at U Lowell toward a Doctorate in Language Arts and Literacy. Finally, three strong candidates approached me for support, which I actively provided for them. In the past four months my personal circumstances have changed. I am currently on a leave of absence from U Lowell, so that I now have the time to devote to a school committee seat.

The information that I have been able to gather concerning past practice and tradition in Wilmington says that a person who was not a candidate for elected office has been appointed in all cases but one. I would hope that the issue not become one of who ran, but rather that the person best qualified among the present applicants be appointed to the seat. I feel that the degree of attendance, attention and commitment to school committee issues that I have shown over the past four years makes me well qualified for this appointment.

For over four years I have been a regular attendee at school committee meetings. I have frequently aired views, requested information, and expressed concerns during the Delegations portion of the meetings. My interests, in particular, have been curriculum development, teacher support, parent issues, and most recently the Middle School issue. With three children attending Wilmington Public Schools, I feel that I have developed a comprehensive overview of the workings of our school system.

My activities have shifted as my family has grown. I am a former member of the League of Women Voters (one year), Brownie Leader (three years), CCD teacher (seven years), and member of the Executive Board of the Wildwood School PAC (two years). I have always and currently do belong to all may children's PACs. When I saw a problem with school-home communications, I co-founded the Wilmington Home and School Association. I am currently serving as Secretary of that group. If appointed to this position, I would resign that position as per our bylaws; however, I would continue to hold membership in the organization.

My professional background is in the field of education. I have taught in the Medford Public School System for 20 years. I hold a BA in English from Emmanuel College and an MEd in Reading from Salem State. For four of my 20 years as an educator, I worked in various administrative positions. Last year by personal choice I returned fulltime to the classroom. I am a recipient of two Horace Mann Grants. I am presently working in my system as a Professional Development consultant, which means that I develop curriculum in addition to my teaching duties. This summer I received a grant to attend the Institute on Writing, Reading and Civic Education at Harvard. The thrust of this institute was to develop in students a sense of obligation from a civic perspective.

As is evidenced through my personal commitments, I have always considered civic involvement as a privilege as well as an obligation. I have voluntarily devoted many hours to the children of Wilmington. I would like the opportunity to serve them in a more formal way through this appointment.

Sincerely,
Peggy Kane

Dear Larz:

The vacancy created by the resignation of Bridget Zukas from the Wilmington School Committee has caused a major void that should be filled as quickly as possible.

As a former committee member who served for two terms, I would like to emphasize the importance of experience. One of the applicants for the appointment is Phil Fenton. In the past Phil successfully served for three terms on the Wilmington School Committee. he also was a candidate in the last public election and lost by a mere one vote.

I think it would be a grave injustice to the children and the voters of Wilmington for the Board of Selectmen and School Committee to appoint anyone other than Phil Fenton to fill this vacancy.

Sincerely,
Tony Accardi

Letters policy

The Town Crier welcomes letters to the editor. To be considered for publication, a letter must be signed with an identifiable name. If the writer requests, the name may be withheld. The writer should restrict the letter to one subject, and try to stay within a 500-word limit. Longer letters will be published only on a space-available basis.

Address letters to: Town Crier, Box 460, Wilmington, MA 01887.

Dear Larz:

We feel we must comment on the school committee's search for a candidate to fill Mrs. Zukas' seat. Why would it be open to people who certainly weren't interested in it four short months ago? We have a qualified man who was interested in it, who took the time and expense to wage a campaign for it, and who lost his bid by a single vote. This man had also previously served on the school committee for nine years. It seems extremely unfair to us that now someone who may have the political pull to get merely six votes between the selectmen and school committee may now take a seat from a man who received nearly 1000 votes from the townspeople of Wilmington.

We hope that everyone who feels Mr. Fenton deserves this appointment will come to the school committee meeting on September 5 and support him. Through our combined efforts, we can get him that one vote he's still looking for.

Sincerely,
Richard and Cathryn Gillis

Backyard gardening

by Hugh Wiberg

Catching up with recent letters and phone calls:

R.M. of Wilmington writes, "As an experiment, we planted a few garlic bulbs in May and the plants have done much better than we expected. Two questions: when are the bulbs ready to be harvested, and how do we store a few of them to plant next spring?"

Garlic is ready to harvest about three weeks after the leaves start to turn yellow. Yellowing will proceed from the bottom as the leaves dry, fall over, and turn brown. If by now they have not done so, don't wait, knock them down yourself. You can begin harvesting when about half of the tops are dry and brown. This is usually early to mid September in our area. Pull the plants, clip off the roots to one half inch long, brush off the soil, and let them cure (dry) in an airy, rain-free place. The bulbs are cured and ready to store when the leaves are crumbly, the root crown is hard, and the cloves can be cracked apart easily. Use as needed, and store several bulbs in mesh bags at 40 to 45 degrees for planting next spring.

T.L. of Tewksbury writes, "Every year at this time I am plagued with swarms of whiteflies on my squash and pumpkin plants. Nothing I do, including spraying with Sevin, seems to affect them. Should I just ignore them, or is there something available to eliminate them?"

Whiteflies, about the size of a large pinhead, seem to have developed a tolerance for most of the commercial pesticides, including Sevin. The nymphs and adults of this insect suck the juices from plant leaves, buds, and stems, weakening the plants. Their life cycle is short, and populations of whiteflies can explode seemingly overnight. I have used a double strength solution of Sevin (two tablespoons to a gallon of water) with little success. The two best control agents are pyrethrum, which paralyzes whiteflies on contact, and a product called "Superior horticultural spray oil," which coats the insects with a thin oil film, in effect suffocating them. Both products are available at all well stocked garden centers. When applying the control agent, take the time to spray the underside of the plant leaves, since this is where the flies congregate.

K.F. of Wilmington phoned the other night to ask when we should expect that first frost. She wanted to be prepared to cover up her tomato and marigold plants in order to extend their season. First frost in this area can range from September 10 to October 10. It is rare that we get frosted before mid-September, but it does occasionally happen. Your best bet is to listen to the 6:00 p.m. weather report. When the forecaster says "Chance of scattered frost in the usual cold spots inland," that means us in the Merrimack Valley. We'll discuss protective measures in a September column.

Plant a bare-root tree by digging the hole a foot wider and six inches deeper than spread and depth of the root system. Mix the top six inches of soil from the hole with equal parts of organic matter. Set this "root zone" soil aside. Make another pile mixing remaining bulk of subsoil with one part organic matter to four parts subsoil to create a "transitional" soil. Loosen soil at bottom of hole, line it with six inches of "transitional" soil. Next, use "root zone" soil to make a conical mound in the hole. Set the tree on it. Add more "root zone" soil until hole is 2/3 full. Add two to three gallons of water. Drain and fill remainder with "root zone" soil.

The professional staff at A & M NURSERY AND FLORIST will personally help you make the most of your lawn. For further information on bare-root trees, call 851-4472. ### I chose Forethought® funeral planning

I've been to funerals where people were more upset from fussing with one another over how things should be, than they were from grief itself. That's not going to happen at mine, because I've taken care of everything in advance... with Forethought. My children won't have to decide a thing, or even worry about the expense.

Forethought is funeral planning... before the need arises

We all regret the fact that we won't live forever. It's a fact we simply can't avoid. But, by planning ahead, we can help our children avoid at least one regret... that of decisions made in haste. I have all my final wishes recorded and on file at the funeral home, right down to the last detail. And I bought the Forethought life insurance policy designed and approved specifically for Forethought funeral planning. Because I'm under 90 years old, I can't be turned down for any reason. Now my children won't have to spend a cent. To me, taking this burden off my children just seems like the motherly thing to do.

Say it with FLOWERS... Because of the beauty of flowers is in itself a miracle and a symbol of hope. Flowers have always belonged at weddings, church services, and at those moments when humans feeling overflows.

Floral arrangements, sprays, and live plants sent in sympathy add dignity and colorful beauty to a funeral. These floral tributes radiate a warmth that enhances the funeral setting. When words fail, flowers are as beautifully alive as a memory.

At THE FLOWER STOP FLORIST, we think you should know that flowers provide comfort to the family as well as a tribute to the one they loved.

When it represents YOU, your sentiments deserve the BEST!

A farewell

There's a nip in the air these days as summer slowly gives way to fall. But memories remain: The plaintive strains of a clarinet on the common. Laughter at the carnival on the Fourth of July. The sounds and shouts of children at play. Chocolate melting down ice cream sticks. Joyful splashing at Silver Lake. Quiet moments of rest under a shady tree. The hum of a bee circling overhead. Time off to pause, to dream, to refresh oneself. Nature's bounty at roadside stands. Walks in the twilight. Sticky nights. Toes wriggling at water's edge. Summer's end nears as we look ahead once again to the challenge of Fall.

Programs at Regional Health Center

The Health Promotions Department of the Regional Health Center in Wilmington is offering the following programs for the fall season, for teens and pre-teens.

Babysitter training for those ages 11 to 15-year-old who may be an after school special (parents working) or who would like to become a qualified babysitter. Classes are scheduled for Mondays, Sept. 11, 18, 25, Oct. 2 from 3:15 to 5:30 p.m. and again Oct. 6, 13, 20 and 27 (Fridays) from 3:15 to 5:30 p.m. Pre-registration is required. The fee is $20.00.

Teen shape up, a medically and nutritionally sound program designed for young people between the ages of 10 and 15 years. Entitled "Look Good-Feel Good" it will meet Tuesdays from 3:30 to 5 p.m. starting with an orientation session September 19 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. with parents.

Growing up female, teaches 10 to 13-year-old girls about female anatomy, hygiene and changes that occur in females and males during adolescence. Will be held Tuesday, October 17 from 3:15 to 5:30 p.m. Fee, $10.00.

Safe at home is a safety and home survival skills training program for latch-key children taught in four sessions, Mondays, November 13, 20, 27 and December 4 from 3:15 to 5:30 p.m. Fee: $25.00.

Teen Girls Day, An all day program, 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday, November 4. Learn about skin care, new aerobic dance steps, nutrition and body language. Lunch will be served.

Cholesterol screenings will be held in September on Wednesday, the 20th from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Thursday, September 21 from 4 to 8 p.m. Total serum cholesterol will be analyzed on the spot through a finger stick sample.

Pre-registration is required for all of the above by calling the Health Promotions Division of the Education Department at 508-657-3910, ext. 567. The Regional Health Center is a division of Choate-Symmes Health Services.

Free scoliosis screening offered in Wilmington

Scoliosis is the term applied to a side to side curvature of the spine when viewed from the back.

Scoliosis can be caused by a number of different things. Sometimes it is related to a defect in spinal development, trauma or disease. Most frequently the cause is unknown (idiopathic).

Scoliosis can affect anyone, but the idiopathic type generally appears during adolescence; it is seen more frequently in girls than boys. It is during this period of rapid growth that undetected scoliosis can progress quickly. For this reason, schools have been offering screening programs for children.

There are a number of options available if a problem is detected. Most scoliosis can be treated with exercise aimed at muscular balance combined with careful observation until skeletal maturity is reached. Occasionally, if the scoliosis begins to progress, more aggressive management may be necessary such as bracing or surgery. While scoliosis can be managed conservatively in most cases, it is important that all cases be followed. If progression occurs and the degree of curvature increases, the risk to the patient of heart and lung problems in later life also increases.

Below you will find a short list of things to look for in your child:

- 1) Uneven hips, shoulders
- 2) Deep skin folds on one side of the body
- 3) Any rib humps - one side of the rib cage more prominent.

On Tuesdays and Thursdays through September 14, 1989 Dr. Burns will be offering a free scoliosis screening for children between the hours of 4 and 6 p.m. at her office at 668 Main Street. To avoid waiting call for an appointment at 658-0944.

Wilmington senior topics

Council meets September 11
The Council on Aging meeting will not be held until Monday, September 11 due to the Labor Day holiday. The center will be closed and the minibus will not be on the road. Please make appointments accordingly.

Lunch reservations
We will be accepting reservations for the lunch program this week. Please call the Center to have a meal delivered or reserved at the lunch site. The fall program will be served at 10:45 a.m. at the high school.

Id cards
Two weeks ago we gave photo id cards to 39 new seniors before film ran out. If you were one of the seniors we had to ask to return for their photo or a new resident 60 years or older, call or go to the Center. We have enough film we hope, to take the photos now.

Social September 14
The September 14 therapeutic social is only two weeks away. We have a long waiting list. Please, if you know you will not be able to attend call the center and let us know. You will make a senior waiting very happy. To cancel on the day before or the morning of the social is not fair, unless it is a very serious emergency. Remember we have combined August and September into this social. It had to be booked and paid for in advance, leaving many seniors missing the cutoff date.

Elder Legal Services
Wednesday, Sept. 6, a representative from the Cambridge/Somerville Elder Legal Services will be at the center. She will be here to assist any senior with problems with Medicare, Medicaid, Social Security, Food Stamps, Elderly Housing and Elder physical or mental abuse. This could be by a family member or others, in the home, hospital or nursing homes, or by anyone who should be working to help us when they are hurting us.

Job opening

We have a job opening at the center for a respite care servicer. The job pays $7.00 an hour five days a week from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. A car will be available to you during these hours. If interested call the center for more information, 657-7595 or 658-2258.

Fall fair coming up
We are moving closer and closer to our senior citizen fall fair. Articles for the tables are coming in and they are as beautiful as last year's. It looks like we are going to have a terrific assortment of excellent articles. We have many closets at the center to hold as many articles as you can bring to us. As soon as they are finished, take them to the office with your name on them. The fair committee will post them with your name and if you can give us the price that should be asked for the article.

White elephants
Please do not take in articles for the white elephant tables. We do not have the space to store them. The building is being utilized throughout. Two programs are being held in the cellar, the shop and ceramics. In the attic we are storing many of our medical supplies that are loaned out to seniors through our medical supply program. So please keep your white elephant articles until the day of the fair.

Checks September 1
We have been notified by the Social Security office that the September Social Security checks will be delivered on September 1 rather than on the third. This is the usual procedure when the third falls on a Saturday, Sunday or legal holiday. It helps to alleviate a problem of not being able to cash the check with banks closed.

Return those books, please
The chairman of the fair committee is asking seniors who have paid for their chance books but have not returned their filled in books, to take them to the center as soon as possible to be checked off.

East nips West, 3-2

This one was a great game to watch! Just ask the 100-plus fans who attended. It was a well pitched, defensive battle, with the East prevailing by a score of 3-2.

Katie Avila went the distance for the East, striking out 10 and walking only one.

Leslie Dobbins was the East defensive standout at third base, making two outstanding plays to stop West rallies.

Offensively, Amy Perrotti, Jessica Terris and Jennifer Starke all hit safely and pitcher Katie Avila helped her cause with a homerun.

For the West, Erin Hazel pitched four strong innings with six strikeouts and while allowing only two hits.

Pitching in relief for the West was Lorraine Pappalardo and Ann Lane, each with one strikeout.

Defensively, Karla Perry made an outstanding catch in leftfield and Brenda Wilkinson made two great plays in the infield.

Offensively, Lorraine Pappalardo and Brenda Wilkinson both went two for two with two extra basehits each. Also in the hit column were Erin Hazel and Kristin Kramer.

Red Sox clinic Thursday

Continental Cablevision and New England Sports Network (NESN) are bringing several Red Sox coaches and a player to the area August 31 for a baseball clinic that will include Little Leaguers from Wilmington.

Red Sox pitching coach Bill Fischer, other Red Sox coaches and a player will give tips on hitting, fielding and base running to 100 youngsters from 10:30 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. August 31 at the Wilmington Little League Rotary Park.

At the invitation of Continental Cablevision, the Wilmington Little League is selecting the contingent of local youngsters who will get to rub elbows - and snag grounders - with the Red Sox instructors.

"It's every young ballplayer's dream to be on the same baseball diamond as his or her major league idols and, with the help of the Red Sox and NESN, we're happy to give Wilmington kids the opportunity," said Elaine Wilmore, Continental Cablevision's local marketing director.

Spectators are welcome at the Continental/NESN Red Sox Baseball Clinic. The Wilmington Little League Rotary Park is on Adelaide Street, across from the Wilmington Police Station.

East All-Stars

Tewksbury Girls Softball League Summer 1989 Junior League East All Stars; coach Gerry Archiprete. ## TMHS scrimmage, reunion Sept. 9

The Tewksbury Redmen Football Club will host its Second Annual T.M.H.S. Football Alumni Reunion cookout at the Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks on September 9. All former Tewksbury High School football players (1935 to present) and family are invited.

Tewksbury vs Gloucester scrimmage begins at 9 a.m. Doucette Stadium (Center School) 1 p.m. start cookout activities.

The cost is $5.00 per individual; $10.00 per family. For further information, and reservations, please call Bob Aylward at 851-6044, 851-2878 or Jim Mackey at 658-4412.

REAL ESTATE GUIDELINES

By Sharon Kelley, G.R.I.
Kelley & Kompany

TERMITE SERVICE CONTRACTS

If you own a home in an area where termite activity is common it's a good idea to investigate some of the termite "insurance" options offered by local pest control companies.

First, they will inspect your home for evidence of termites or termite damage. If they find bugs, they will discuss the various treatment options with you. Once your home is termite free, they will offer you a service contract which includes an annual property inspection. If any further treatment or repair is needed, the costs are covered by your service policy.

Because termites can cause serious damage to beams and joists, it's a good idea to have your home checked regularly. A pro will be able to spot termite trouble before it becomes a problem that can compromise the structural integrity of your home. If you're planning to sell your home in the near future, you might have an expert check it for termites before their existence becomes an issue in the sales transaction.

For solid advice on buying or selling real estate, consult the professionals at Kelley & Kompany. Please call us at 658-4171 or stop by our office at 20 Middlesex Avenue in Wilmington. **

outdoors column

Always make that first shot count

by Bill Conlon
As a former editor once taught me, a reporter lives by three rules: Accuracy, accuracy and accuracy.

That applies to outdoors pursuits as well. Accuracy in all things, at all times. Accept no substitutes.

If you're drifting along the edge of the weeds and you spot a small opening that looks "fishy," there's no replacement for accuracy. You either drop your offering dead on the coin, or you miss and drag in six pounds of weeds, spooking the fish in the process. Period.

The same rule applies to hunting. More often than not while hunting deer, you might get a good look at a buck for all of ten seconds, if you get to see one at all. (Actually, I've met people who've never seen a live deer in ten-plus years of trying.) The difference between telling a story around the fire, and a winter-worth of fresh venison on the pole, is how well that first shot is placed. You might get one shot all season. Make it count.

Bird hunting is also no exception. When a partridge flushes out from underfoot, you get two heartbeats, maybe, to point, aim and squeeze at a bundle of receding feathers. You need luck just to get a first shot, and rarely will you have enough time for a second.

And the list goes on. Accuracy is all that keeps navigators from being lost at sea. Accuracy puts your boat back over the same spot where you caught the big ones last week. And accuracy with a compass gets you back out of the woods. How many decimal points is accurate enough? No such thing. It's all or nothing.

The first rule of accuracy is to know your equipment. At all times, in all weather, you need to know precisely how your gun, bow, rod or slingshot will fit in your hand and how it works. That "tool" you use is all that stands between success and failure. Know it from an active stance, know it from rest, know it in the pitch dark and know it in the moonlight. If you need to think of how to get just the right grip on it, you're wasting time. It should be fully automatic. Second nature.

Your first few outings with a new gun or fishing rod will be a lot like a first date. You're still learning how the other thinks, and fumbles are common, if embarrassing.

Once you get past that first date, the exploratory phase, a sort of bond develops. After a while you can almost read her mind (... or his mind. We're fair here.) That's how a familiar shotgun or a fishing rod should feel -- like an extension of your hand. You just know where it goes, instantly.

After a few trips you'll be able to drop a lure within an inch of where you wanted it, without thought. Or you can pick off a bird flying by at full throttle, without damaging any meat. Familiarity is the key. Know your tools, and know them well.

The next step to perfect accuracy is practice. And practice. And a bit more practice.

I bought my first hunting bow a few weeks back, and since then I've twanged at least a hundred arrows into haybales, first with blunt field points, but lately with the same razorheads that I'll use during deer season. But I'm just getting started, as there's much left undone. My immediate goal is to be able to hold the bow at full draw for ten clock minutes, then hit a pie plate on the first shot, at the distance I choose.

I'll be ready by the start of bow-hunting season. It's coming.

The same applies to using slugs in the shotgun deer season. It's well worth expending a few extra boxes of slugs to make sure that your old smoothbore is hitting where the eye is looking.

Anything else means missed deer, or even worse, an injured one. To kill a deer is one thing, surely not a sport for everybody, but hurting a deer is a sin, pure and simple. A quick, clean kill is the only humane way to hunt. Anything else would be wrong, morally and ethically. Besides, an average deer season means six days spent sitting in the woods, and in a good deer hunt you may get to shoot. Once.

So get in contact with your local rod and gun club about doing some target work. Most clubs will have sighting-in days, open to the public, just prior to hunting season.

Or, since all the local towns have abdicated their histories by banning the discharge of firearms, you may need to drive westward awhile to find someplace where you can just shoot until it no longer amuses you.

For no matter how much practice you get, you'll need more. You can never be TOO accurate.

One shot. One cast. One chance. That's all you can expect. Make it count the first time.

--- Tackle Box ---

Tewksbury Rod & Gun Club is hosting another free Hunter Safety class, which starts on September 7, and runs for seven weeks. The class will last from 7 to 9 p.m., and it's a worthwhile endeavor if you plan to hunt out of state. Many states and Canadian provinces now require proof of a hunter safety class, and the card you get at the conclusion of the Tewksbury session fits the bill. Drop by the TR&G clubhouse on Chandler Street on the first night of class to enroll. No charge.

The Mass. Audubon Society plans a number of nature walks, open to the public at a small charge. Friday, September 8, will see a wildflower study from 10 a.m. to noon, and on September 10, from 2 to 4 p.m., they plan a family nature walk to look at how insects get ready for the winter. The walks will be held at the Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary, in Topsfield. Take Route 1 to Route 97 and take the second right onto Perkins Row.

The next members-only derby of the Greater Lowell Fly Fishers will be held September 10, at the Bedford ramp on the Concord River.

Rec. Dept. coming events

Newport mansion trip

The Wilmington Recreation Department is now taking reservations for its' Saturday, September 16 trip to beautiful Newport, R.I.

The group will enjoy a tour of Narragansett Bay by boat, have time at the Brick Market Place for shopping and lunch, then tour Rosecliff, the mansion used in the movie "The Great Gatsby."

There will also be a narrated bus tour along the mansion-studded shoreline. Call the Recreation office, 658-4270 for more information.

Red Sox trip

See the Bosox in action at Fenway Park in Boston on Saturday afternoon September 30. The Wilmington Recreation Department has a bus trip to Fenway to see the Red Sox play Milwaukee. Call the Rec office, 658-4270 for more information.

Men's basketball meeting

There will be a men's basketball league meeting in the Recreation office on Tuesday, October 10 at 8 p.m. A representative from each prospective team should be present.

Anyone interested in assisting with the running of this highly successful program should contact Paul Lyman or Ron Swasey in the Recreation Department, 658-4270.

Discounts

The Wilmington Recreation Department has discount tickets for the Showcase Cinemas, good in Woburn, Lawrence and Revere. Call 658-4270 for details or stop by the Recreation office at the town hall on Glen Road between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Discounts are also available for many Florida attractions including Magic Kingdom Club cards good at Disney, Epcot, and MGM Studios, Busch Gardens, Cypress Gardens, Boardwalk Baseball and Sea World.

Wilmington police news

There were 20 arrests in Wilmington during the week ending August 29, 10 cases of disorderly conduct, eight cases of vandalism, eight reports of larceny, and one case of simple assault. Alarms numbered 48, traffic accidents eight, 13 public service calls and there were three incidents of assisting other agencies.

Tuesday evening, August 22 Officer Fiore and Matron Barbara Knickle drove to the Townsend

Police headquarters to arrest Cassandra Murphy of Billerica, on a Wilmington police warrant.

A Dracut man was arrested on Salem Street shortly after noon on Wednesday by Officer Buddy Hubby. Christopher Fraser, 22, was charged with possession of a class D substance, believed to be marijuana. He was also arrested on a default warrant.

A local man was arrested Wednesday night, after an intensive two day investigation into an instance of breaking into a home and committing a sexual assault on a local woman.

Brian Connolly, 18, of Beeching Street, Wilmington was charged with armed robbery, armed assault with intent to kill, indecent assault and battery, unnatural acts, assault and battery by means of a dangerous weapon (knife), assault with intent to rape, and burglary, with armed assault. The investigation was conducted by Sgt. Shepard, Inspector Jenson and Officer Chris Neville. Connolly was held overnight in lieu of bail and was taken to Woburn Court Thursday morning.

Thursday night, after responding to a domestic call at 831 Main St., Wilmington, Terry J. Whipple, 26, of Methuen was arrested by Officers Chris Neville, Waterhouse and Miller. He was charged with violation of a restraining order obtained by his wife. He was additionally charged with assault and battery on a police officer and possession of a class D controlled substance.

Later in the night he was additionally charged with malicious damage to real property, to wit, the lighting system in the police department cell, after he had damaged the recently installed light/audio suicide prevention system.

There were three arrests Friday morning between 1:30 and 2:15. Richard Howard of 26 Butters Row was arrested on the basis of a Wilmington warrant by Officer David Axelrod. At 2 a.m. Officer Buddy Hubby arrested Daryn J. Dunnell of 7 Harris St. He was charged with operating a motor vehicle without obtaining a driver's license.

Calos A. Oliverira of Lawrence was arrested at 2:15 a.m. by Officer Bob Richter and charged with operating while under the influence. He was bailed for court Friday morning. Oliverira failed to appear on Friday and was defaulted.

Friday night Officer Tom Miller drove to Lawrence to arrest Kenneth R. Fontaine of Lawrence on a default warrant issued by the Woburn Court. For the lack of bail Fontaine was held for the weekend, and taken to Woburn Court on Monday. Authorities in New Hampshire are also interested in Fontaine, and want him returned to that state on other charges.

Officer Paul Jenson, at 1:30 a.m. Saturday arrested Ivan R. Colon of Billerica, charging him with operating after suspension of his license, and with giving a false name to a police officer.

William Swymer of Woburn was arrested by Officer Mike Begonis at 3 a.m. Saturday while on patrol near the North Reading line. He was held on a Burlington warrant, and later returned to that town.

Sunday morning William A. Rubino of Billerica was arrested by Officer Joe Harris, who was on patrol on Burlington Avenue. Rubino was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence. He was bailed for a Monday court appearance, where he may expect his license will be suspended, due to a reading of .23 on the breathalyzer test.

At 2:45 a.m. Officer David Axelrod arrested Walter J. Cieplik of Reading and charged him with operating under the influence. He was also bailed for a Monday morning appearance at Woburn Court.

Two young men were arrested during the midnight to 8 a.m. watch on Monday. Officers Begonis and Desmond arrested Richard Hayden of Arlene Avenue at the corner of Federal Street and Middlesex Avenue. He was charged with operating under the influence and driving so as to endanger the public.

After investigating an accident on Glen Road Officers Mike Begonis and Chris Neville arrested David Gidari, 19 of 1 Quincy St., Wilmington. He was charged with operating under the influence, speeding, and endangering the public. Two passengers in the car sustained injuries. Lisa Gidari, 23, was taken to Mass. General Hospital for treatment of extensive injuries. Ernie Boudreau of One Rhodes Street, along with the driver were taken to the Leahy Clinic for treatment.

A Fitchburg man was arrested Monday afternoon by Officers Chip Bruce and Paul Chalifour, after they checked out a car on Industrial Way. John S. Boulet, 54, was charged with possession of a class D substance believed to be marijuana.

At 1 a.m. Tuesday Officers Joe Harris and Mike Begonis arrested Steven R. Yurek, 17, of Shawheen Avenue and Jeffery Quinn, 20 of Fairmeadow Road on charges of underage possession of alcohol.

Arsenault new Wildwood principal

by Arlene Surprenant
Robert Arsenault, assistant principal at the Shawheen Elementary School, received the nod last week to become new principal of the Wildwood School. Arsenault received a majority vote of the Wilmington School Committee. Aldo Caira, whose daughter Michelle Norton was also in the running, abstained.

Arsenault's name was brought up by Supt. William Fay after a third attempt to appoint veteran Richard Gorham to the position on Wednesday failed in a two to three vote. Fay told the committee both Gorham and Arsenault were the two "top" candidates recommended by the screening committee and he had no qualms recommending either one. The screening committee had reviewed the backgrounds of the seven in-house candidates who had applied for the job and narrowed the list down to four finalists. Besides Gorham, Arsenault, and Norton, the list included Douglas Anderson.

The school committee agreed unanimously to post the assistant principal position at the Shawheen School in-house. Committeeman John DeMarco spoke for many when he said Wilmington needed to reward the "good people" within the system.

the first floor of the high school. The program will be run by teacher Janet Alubello and her early childhood students. It will offer hands-on experience with pre-schoolers to those pupils wishing to go on to related careers or to learn more about the joy of parenting.

The focus at the intermediate schools this fall will be on implementation of the middle school concept sometime in the near future. Principals Jim Jordan at the West and principal Michael Tikonoff, new at the North, are currently looking into a middle school program which should include team teaching in another year or two, said Fay.

Most of the new instructors this year will work at the elementary level. Deborah Birmingham, who holds a B.S. from Worcester State, and Linda Stillings, who earned a B.S. from Norwich University, will both take over as first grade teachers. Joan Connolly, a graduate of Lowell State, will assume duties as a third grade teacher, while Anne O'Neill, a graduate of Lesley College, will step in as a teacher in the resource room. As of last Wednesday, Shawheen's Assistant Principal Robert Arsenault has been promoted to principal at the Wildwood School.

This year there will be a more coordinated effort to educate students against using drugs. Laura Stinson will join Susan Cazzoli in coordinating the anti-drug program, which encompasses DARE and Project Charlie.

Curriculum review will assume a high priority in all schools, according to Fay, who said he will meet next week with directors and department heads to review the curriculum's strengths and weaknesses. Another long range goal is preparing for the accreditation of Wilmington High in October, 1990. To that end, said Fay, the school committee has already approved the school philosophy and all committees have been formed.

own a power plant and it was entitled to enough revenues to provide an eight percent profit for that community. Wilmington joined up with Reading Light in 1911. North Reading and Lynnfield followed, but no provision was ever made for the division of the profits.

This was one of the major points raised by Wilmington's negotiating team as it followed town meeting directive to look into options to break with Reading Light. Other issues included street lighting rates and becoming part of the decision making process.

Reading Light General Manager Len Rucker called the agreement "very advantageous", not only to RMLD but to all the towns as well.

"We have finally moved toward a more mature relationship between the utility itself and the four member towns," Rucker told the Town Crier this week. He said the proposal will help break the cycle of both sides "doing battle" with each other every 20 or so years. The agreement will also help avoid arguments over such things as damages since it sets up mechanics for notification if a town wants to leave the system, Rucker said.

The general manager praised Stewart and Cain for their efforts during the "very arduous" negotiation process. He also thanked Rep. James Miceli and Selectman Michael McCoy for giving RMLD "hope" that things could be resolved to the satisfaction of all.

Rucker and board chairman Philip Pacino served as the negotiating team for Reading Light. The agreement is now subject to review and public comment in all towns, both by selectmen and town meeting voters. Stewart said he anticipates an article will be placed on the October town meeting warrant to recind the action of two previous votes to remove Wilmington from RMLD. Both Rucker and Stewart expect the contract to be finalized and signed by December.

PIECING TOGETHER A MANAGEMENT PLAN

MAINE'S PATCHWORK NATIONAL PARK

By Richard Sassaman
Special to The Christian Science Monitor

ARCING across Maine's Mount Desert Island, Acadia National Park is a scenic mix of mountains, lakes, offshore islands, and rock-bound Maine coast. The park includes Somes Sound, the only fjord in the continental United States, and the 1,530-foot summit of Cadillac Mountain, highest point on North America's Atlantic Coast.

"There's nothing better than right here," says Acadia superintendent Jack Hauptman. "You've got the mountains meeting the sea; you've got it all."

Unique among national parks, Acadia has been created entirely from gifts of land. It shares borders with all four towns - Bar Harbor, Mt. Desert, Southwest Harbor, and Tremont - a patchwork arrangement that has created management problems and sparked controversy.

"People often donated land that had nothing to do with the other parts of the park," Isabel Mancinelli, a Park Service planner, explains. "So the towns never knew what their tax base was going to be. And the park felt frustrated because, unable to purchase anything, it had no way to acquire certain key parcels."

Jordan Pond and the Bubbles are among the varied scenic attractions on Mt. Desert Island

isted. Later, every time people went to do a GMP, their focus fell instead on trying to set park boundaries."

After more than 20 years of negotiation, federal legislation in September 1986 finally established definite boundaries for Acadia, which also includes portions of Isle au Haut and mainland Schoodic Peninsula (see map). "Now we can ask, 'What are we going to do with what we have?'" the planner says.

Carrying out a GMP has become more complex in recent years because of Acadia's great appeal. Although it is one of the smallest national parks (35,000 acres), Acadia ranks second in popularity (after Great Smoky Mountains National Park, which straddles the borders of Tennessee and North Carolina in the Appalachian Mountains).

"We're seeing expansion of [attendance] each month, especially in the fall," Mancinelli says. "This September, we had a 7 percent increase in visitation over the same month last year."

Such a crush of people - an estimated 4.7 million in 1988 - is about four times Maine's population, and 1,100 times the year-round population of Bar Harbor, Mt. Desert Island's largest town.

A recent Harvard University study expresses concern about "the forces threatening [Acadia's] unique character if not its very survival." Projecting ahead, the study warns that as many as 6.2 million people may descend on Mt. Desert Island annually by the year 2000.

James Batchelder, executive director of the nonprofit group

Friends of Acadia, notes, "Most of New England is within a day's drive. The issue of numbers, of an island carrying capacity, needs to be looked at. What kind of an experience are we trying to give visitors?"

"Growth management is at the top of everybody's agenda," Mr. Hauptman says. "And I spend a lot of time looking over the boundary fence, because growth management in the towns is critical to how we're going to manage the park."

Hauptman also came to Maine last year, from his post as head of Fire Island National Seashore. At Acadia he finds many of the same problems he faced in New York: crowds of visitors along the shoreline, private-property land-use issues, and numerous local communities in and around park boundaries.

"I tell people I'm not going to make the decision on limits," the superintendent says. "I'm going to protect the resource. I'll also provide the highest-quality visitor services I can, and if that requires putting limits on how the park is used, I'll do that."

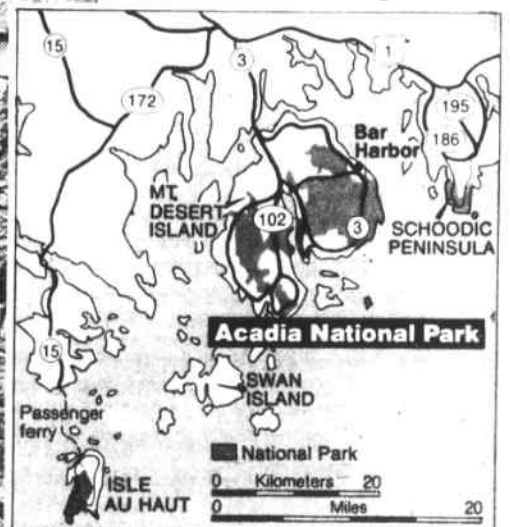

"We have to work closely with the towns, because we need to know whether current trends of growth and development will continue unchecked," Mancinelli says. "We're calling it a 'cooperative stewardship' of the island; and we all need to work together."

Hoping to provide citizen input into the planning process, local residents have created two new activist groups. "Since Acadia is the only national park created almost entirely by private contributions, it's appropriate that private citizens again come to its support," says Mr. Batchelder about the 350-member organization he formed in the fall of 1986.

"It's a difficult road sometimes, because it can be far too easy for a group like Friends of Acadia to become very critical," Batchelder says. "We try to maintain a relationship of advocacy, not adversity." The GMP, he adds, "provides an ideal opportunity for citizens to take some really pro-active steps, and become involved with the park's future."

Public speaking 4H program

During the past year, approximately 500 Middlesex County youngsters learned public speaking skills. Participating in the 4-H Visual Presentation Project, sponsored by the University of Massachusetts Cooperative Extension Middlesex County Office. Youngsters with the best presentation went on to compete in a county-wide event; and winners there competed with others from across the state.

"4-H Visual Presentation is a traditional, required part of the 4-H Program," said Carol Halewood, 4-H Agent in the Concord office. "The youngsters go through the complete process of picking a subject to talk about; researching that topic; making posters, models or finding the real thing; and then making a presentation in front of a group. Through this program, youngsters gain confidence by giving these illustrated talks in a supportive atmosphere and thereby increasing their speaking ability.

Healthy Women.... Comprehensive answers to today's woman's health questions.

by Roy A. Epstein, M.D. & Richard L. McDowell, M.D.

Q: When should I have my first gynecologic examination?

A: If a young girl has no complaints that would bring her to a doctor earlier than usual, she should definitely be seen when she is contemplating intercourse so that safe birth control methods can be prescribed. At that time, yearly PAP smears and breast examinations will be started. This is also an excellent time to teach the young patient how to perform breast self examinations and how to avoid sexually transmitted diseases.

Q: I have had breast cancer (age 48) and I am now 54 and have started menopause. I am very confused about Estrogen Replacement Therapy and breast cancer. HELP!

A: Estrogen Replacement Therapy is contraindicated in a patient who has had breast cancer. Cyclic progesterone (a hormone) and bellerigal can be taken to alleviate vasomotor (hot or pertaining to the blood vessels) symptoms of the menopause, such as hot flashes. Supplemental calcium, (75 mg daily), good nutrition and exercise may help prevent osteoporosis.

Stop smoking program September 11

Are you trying to quit smoking? If so, New England Memorial Hospital (NEMH), Stoneham, is offering two stop-smoking programs this fall that can help you kick the habit.

"Breathe Free" is a smoking-cessation program designed to help smokers get through difficult withdrawal process and successfully stop smoking. Taught by a multidisciplinary group of healthcare professionals, the program includes an introductory session, a five-day cessation period and follow-up sessions. The program runs from September 14 through October 5, meeting from 7 to 9 p.m. The next quit night is September 19.

"New Life and Breath for Her" is a quit-smoking program that recognizes the special needs of women. The course runs from November 9 through December 7, meeting from 7 to 9 p.m. The next quit night is November 14.

These programs offer a reduced fee when the registration is accompanied by a physician's prescription. For more information, or to register for the programs, call the NEMH Center for Health Promotion at (617) 979-7057.

COMING UP AT NORTHERN ESSEX

- Reading Memorial High School, in Reading
Late registration 6-8 pm, Tuesday and Thursday, September 5 & 7. For information 508-374-3800.
- WAR and MEMORY
A retrospective exhibit examining the Vietnam war and its aftermath. Bentley Library Gallery, Haverhill campus, through September 27th.

Try something different this year—take a course at NORTHERN ESSEX COMMUNITY COLLEGE

David Messina of Dracut did — so can you!

David Messina is one of those rare people who knew exactly what he wanted to do very early. "I've been interested in computers every since I had a teletypewriter course in high school."

David came to Northern Essex after high school because, he says, "It was the only practical option open to me." David needed low tuition, and he wanted to stay in the area and live at home while he was in school. "My brother went to NECC years before me," David says, "and I knew I'd get a tremendous education there."

A Dean's List student, he received his associate's degree in Computer Technology from NECC in 1980. "I did demographic programming for the college as a lab assistant while I was a student," David says. "I think it's great that NECC opens up projects to students — it's great experience."

David is now a systems consultant in the Materials Department at Wang Laboratories in Tewksbury. "I like Wang," he says, "the people are wonderful, I get a chance to interact with them on the job, and I've traveled internationally (Taiwan, Australia, Scotland, Hong Kong) installing applications I've worked on." David says he still wants to continue his education and takes classes now.

"I spent a lot of time in the lab at NECC," David says, "and I got a lot of education out of it."

About the towns

by PHYLLIS NISSEN

WINCHESTER - Winchester artist Paul Tarkianinen was recently commissioned by the Sheraton Boston Hotel and Towers to draw a portrait sketch of Comte Gilbert de Puy La Fayette, direct descendant of the Marquis de La Fayette.

READING - Boy Scouts, church members, the school system, town organizations and clubs, town institution Arnold Berger, and good-hearted volunteers everywhere keep the Reading Clergy Association's food pantry well stocked throughout the year, with even more spontaneous support during the holidays.

Located at Reading's Old South United Methodist Church, the pantry can always use nonperishable items or cash, which is converted into vouchers for perishables, such as bread, eggs and milk.

For the most part, the pantry helps people in trouble on a one-time, immediate need basis although there are exceptions. Referrals come through the clergy, the Department of Human Services, mental health professionals, the Council on Aging, and the Community Services Network.

MALL WATCH - It's time. A "Merchant Program for Safer Shopping"; generic black, white and red questions and answers; in effect in your local mall, especially if you're around and about Burlington.

What is Mall Watch? Why and how? A proactive program - modeled after Neighborhood Watch - designed to enhance security in the shopping center. "Too often," reads the card, "we expect our local police departments to do everything for us in the fight against crime." Mall Watch allows customers, mall merchants, mall security, and law enforcement agencies to work together "to fight crime and control store losses" by combining awareness with educational seminars and a telephone alert network.

What kinds of activity does Mall Watch monitor? All kinds of undesirable activity: shoplifting, passing bad checks, credit card fraud. In the first year of the pilot Mall Watch program - no indication of where or when - shoplifting incidents were reduced by 35 percent.

How does Mall Watch benefit you? Lower prices? Safety first? A holistic shopping experience? "In general, it will make your shopping experience more enjoyable and profitable." For all concerned.

"For example, the losses incurred by fraud and theft typically are passed along to the consumer and can amount to billions of dollars annually. Furthermore, Mall Watch is a self help program which oftentimes will lighten the burden of our law enforcement agencies.

"It should be a comfort to you, our shopper, to know that any suspicious activity or undesirable behavior in the mall will quickly be reported and curtailed."

What can you do to help? What would you have done before? What about those gangs of kids running about? Report any suspicious behavior in the mall parking lot or interior to the nearest mall security guard or store employee.

SENIOR-CENTERED - The Stoneham Seniors are planning a major Flea Market at their Elm St. center on Saturday, September 9th. Table space is available for $7. White elephant items are appreciated. Raffle tickets are available for cash prizes - "a better return on your investment than the stock market" because the Friends of Stoneham Seniors will use the proceeds to increase recreational activities and to brighten up the center.

For more info, call Marion Rockwood at 438-3801, after 4:00 p.m.

Flea market fun for all. Come rain. Come shine!

MDC offers free September programs

The Metropolitan District Commission's Reservations and Historic Sites Unit is offering a number of free events at Blue Hills Reservation. These activities cover a wide range of topics and are suitable for people of all ages. Programs for the month of September are as follows:

Weather Observatory Tour on Saturday, September 2 at 2 p.m. Back by popular demand! Don't miss this hike to and tour of the historic observatory. Savor the beautiful view from the top of the structure. Participants should meet in the parking lot 1/4 mile north of the Trailside Museum off Route 138 in Milton.

Blue Hills Bike Tour on Sunday, September 3 at 1 p.m. Bike through the lovely Blue Hills Reservation with a MetroParks ranger on hand to point out the highlights of the 1 1/2 hour route. Bring your bicycle and some friends and meet at the Houghtons Pond lot off Hillside Street in Milton.

Eight Annual Blue Hills Day on Saturday, September 9 begins at 9 a.m. and runs until 4 p.m. Join MetroParks, the Friends of Blue Hills and the Massachusetts Audubon Society. Guests are encouraged to participate in a variety of exciting events including guided hikes, bike tours, free canoeing programs, orienteering, pony rides and much more. This program takes place throughout the Reservation, with an information table at the Houghtons Pond lot off Hillside Street in Milton. Call 698-1802 for more information.

Summer Wildflower Stroll on Sunday, September 10 at 2 p.m. Prismatic displays of bright wildflowers grace the meadows of the Blue Hills Reservation every summer. Join MetroParks rangers for a 1 1/2 hour stroll through veritable palette of color. Participants may meet at the parking lot 1/4 mile north of the Trail Side Museum in Milton.

Reptiles and Amphibians of the Blue Hills on Saturday, September 16 at 2 p.m. If you are interested in the reptilian and amphibious life of the Blue Hills Reservation then join MetroParks rangers for a 1 1/2 hour period of field work searching for resident snakes, frogs, turtles and salamanders. Participants should meet at the Houghtons Pond lot off Hillside Street in Milton.

Stone Walls and Cellar Holes on Sunday, September 17 at 2 p.m. Journey into the past of the Blue Hills on this MetroParks ranger-guided tour of stone walls, cellar holes and other remnants of homesteads dating from the 17th to the 19th century. This event includes a car caravan to a site in the eastern section of the reservation. Participants should meet at the Houghtons Pond lot off Hillside Street in Milton.

Venture to the Ponkapoag Bog on Saturday, September 23 at 2 p.m. Ponkapoag Bog is a lovely wetland environment with thriving populations of rare plantlife. This MetroPark ranger-led tour along the boardwalk explores the unique ecology of this region and gives visitors an opportunity to pick ripe cranberries! Participants should meet at the pull-off at Exit 3 off Route 128 in Canton.

Help clean up our environment on September 23 in "Coastsweeps 89," a series of cleanups along over 30 shoreline areas, including

TREASURE ISLAND

A chance to add to a classic

Robert Louis Stevenson wrote Treasure Island in response to a challenge from his young stepson to "Write something really interesting." Now, Long John Silver's Seafood Shoppes has issued a similar challenge to modern readers. As part of its 20th anniversary celebration, Long John Silver's is offering a luxurious Caribbean cruise to the winner of its "Solve the Mystery of Treasure Island" contest.

Aspiring authors must submit a sequel, (1,000-word maximum) to the well-known Stevenson classic, Treasure Island. What happened to the three main characters, Jim Hawkins, Dr. Livesey, and the crusty old pirate, Long John Silver, after they found the treasure and went their separate ways? Did their paths cross again? How did they spend their fortunes? What was their next adventure?

John Tobe, president of Long John Silver's, explains, "We're encouraging anyone who has a good idea for the sequel to Treasure Island to get involved. You don't have to be a great writer, just someone with imagination who enjoys a good story." Tobe added that Long John's plans to have the winning idea turned into a short story novel and will see that it is published.

In conjunction with the writing contest, Long John Silver's has republished a 1949 classics Illustrated abridged version of Treasure Island which will be sold in its restaurants for $1.95, of which $1 will be donated to national literacy programs. Said Tobe, "We believe this illustrated version of the story will encourage people who otherwise might not be exposed to classics like Treasure Island to give it a try." The book also gives details of the writing contest, Tobe added.

Rules for the contest may be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Writing Contest, P.O. Box 6883, Cincinnati, Ohio 45206. Submissions to the contest will be judged on creativity, adherence to the original themes of Treasure Island and suitability for family audience.

First prize includes the Carnival Caribbean Cruise for two, and publication of a short story or novel based on the winning idea. Second prize is a week-long vacation in Monterey, California, home of Robert Louis Stevenson at the time he created Treasure Island. A Windjammer Cruise in the Caribbean will be awarded to the third-place winner.

"Save our future - invest in children"

Directors and staff members of Catholic Charities/North Suburban have joined the "Save Our Future...Invest in Children" campaign to increase public awareness of children's issues, and to encourage public officials to make children a priority in their legislative agendas.

Throwing their support behind the effort launched in early July by the Executives Group of the Massachusetts Child Welfare League of America, the agency's social service advocates began the mailing of small wooden planks to their legislators, asking them for a copy of their agenda for children.

The campaign has taken on an added significance in the wake of massive budget cuts announced by Gov. Michael Dukakis.

"America's future depends on today's children," pointed out Regional Director Gail Kirker Murray. "Too many children are dropping out of school, slipping into poverty, deprived of quality child care, and subjected to physical and mental abuse. Cutting children's programs is not only shortsighted but a critical blow to the future of this state. Investing in children today will prove less costly to taxpayers in the long run, and help provide us with the leaders we will need tomorrow."

During the upcoming elections, candidates will be flooded with wooden planks, and the children's agenda each candidate develops or does not develop will draw widespread public scrutiny.

Friends and supporters of Catholic Charities/North Suburban who would like to join the "Save Our Future...Invest in Children" campaign are urged to contact the agency at any of its offices.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

-A Listing of Interesting Events and Happenings-

FREE COMMUNITY EDUCATIONAL PRESENTATION

Adolescence for many can be punctuated with the acts of vandalism, reckless behavior and aggressive outbursts. Many times teens who defy authority and have a general disregard for others are said to be passing through a stage, but recurrent or extended aggressive and uncooperative behavior can indicate serious problems.

To educate parents, teachers and others about how to spot problem behaviors, Brookside Hospital is sponsoring a free community educational presentation as part of its "Learning To Grow" series. "When acting Out Isn't Acting: Understanding Adolescent Problem Behavior" will be held on Wednesday, September 6th from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Chuck Goldstein, ACSW, has over 14 years of experience working with adolescents in clinical settings. He holds a master of social work degree from the University of Pittsburgh and is recognized for his work in managing adolescent suicidal behavior.

All "Learning To Grow" presentations are free and open to the public. Seating is limited and registration is required. To register, call Brookside Hospital Community Relations Office toll-free at 1-800-825-5009. Early registration is encouraged.

PEARL HARBOR SURVIVORS SOUGHT

December 7, 1991 will be the 50th anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor, Hawaii in 1941. The Pearl Harbor Survivors Association, veterans organization, will be going back to Pearl Harbor for this 50th golden anniversary. If you are a Pearl Harbor survivor, or would like information on this Memorial convention contact P.H.S.A. Weymouth, Mass., 02188 General Delivery.

ART IN THE PARK IN ANDOVER

The 14th annual Art in the Park will be held Saturday, September 16th from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Central Park Andover. Exhibit and sale of paintings, photography, sculpture and graphics. Free to the public. Rain date is Sunday, September 17. Proceeds go to AAG's scholarship fund for student artists.

GENEALOGISTS COURSES IN LYNNFIELD

Essex Society of Genealogists (E.S.O.G.) will sponsor two genealogy courses this fall.

The Advanced Course, 10 sessions including four field trips, will be held in the Lynnfield Public Library on Wednesdays, September 6 through October 15 and November 8 to 15. It will include: Preparing for Certification; Will & Deed Abstracts; Preponderance of Evidence Theory; Writing a Three Generation Genealogy by the "Register Method." The Instructor is Marcia Wiswall Linberg, C.G. The fee is $35, payable to ESOG, c/o H.P. Bosworth, treas., 37 Main Street, Saugus, 01906. For further details, contact Mrs. Lindberg at 617-334-3406.

The six session Beginners Course is scheduled on Tuesdays, October 3 to November 7; 7:30 to 9 p.m., in the Lynnfield Public Library. The course will cover: How to get started; Charting; Record Keeping; Sources; Library Research. Instructors will be Earle Hazelwood, Marcia Lindberg, Donald Doliber, and Ruth Bova. The fee for this course is $25 ($20 for seniors and full-time students), payable to E.S.O.G., c/o H.P. Bosworth, treas., 37 Main Street, Saugus, 01906. For further details, contact Mr. Hazelwood at 508-887-5150.

LABOR DAY DANCE IN STONEHAM

On Saturday, September 2nd from 8 p.m. to midnight a dance will be held at the Marconi Hall on Pine Street in Stoneham. Donation is $5 per person. Singles and couples are welcome. For more information, call Bill or Lorraine at 321-5966.

EXPERIENCED SINGERS SOUGHT IN STONEHAM

ROUND DANCE CLASSES IN ANDOVER

Round Dance Classes for Adult Singles and Couples will be offered this fall at the Ballardvale United Church in Andover by the Four Seasons Rounds. Classes will start Tuesday September 12th with Introduction to Round Dancing from 7 to 8:30 p.m. and Easy-Intermediate to Intermediate Rounds from 8:30 to 10 p.m. The Ballardvale Church is on Clark Road, less than one mile from Dascomb Road, Exit 42 off Route 93.

An increasingly popular activity in this area, Round Dancing uses ballroom steps in routines set to familiar melodies. It is an easy way to learn to dance to music using waltz, two step, foxtrot figures, etc., at a very reasonable cost. Lessons are $3.50 per person.

Four Seasons Rounds is moving its fall and winter program to Andover starting this fall. The club met last winter in Salem, New Hampshire and the last two summers in Tewksbury. Round Dance teacher is Paula Huse of Georgetown. Paula has taught for the last four years. At present besides teaching for Four Seasons Rounds, she teaches for the Wilmington Skirts and Flirts and the Topsfield Fairtown Squares. If you have further questions, Paula can be reached at 508-352-2078.

CAMERA CLUB GET ACQUAINTED MEETING

Rain forest extinction threatens us all

By DONALD J. FREDERICK
National Geographic News Service

Mass extinction: The phrase brings images of the widespread dying of animals and plants millions of years ago.

The world has been hit with five major extinctions, and scientists say that a sixth is well under way.

Unlike earlier catastrophes, caused by long-term evolutionary competition or environmental change, this one is caused by man.

"We have become the greatest catastrophic agent since the extinction spasm that closed the Mesozoic Era 65 million years ago," says Edward O. Wilson, a Harvard University biology professor.

Hardest hit by the new wave of extinction are the world's tropical forests. About a third of Earth's plant and animal species are believed to live in them.

"In a few square kilometers in Ecuador or Malaysia," says Wilson, "can be found hundreds of species of birds, thousands of species of plants, and tens of thousands of species of beetles."

Denuded by farming, ranching, logging, mining, and the demand for firewood, the forests are fast disappearing.

"Although the large and sparsely populated blocks of forest in the Brazilian Amazon and in the interior of Guyana might last past the middle of the next century, most of the remaining forests will be gone within the next 25 years," says Peter H. Raven, director of the Missouri Botanical Garden and an expert on tropical forests.

With the forests will go irreplaceable sources of medicines and germ plasm important to agriculture, as well as much of the world's most remarkable wildlife, including animals such as the orangutan, tapir, and spider monkey, says Raven.

"Many plant and animal species in the forests might become extinct before they can even be discovered or described by scientists," he says. "Over the next 25 years, we can expect the rate of extinction to average approximately 100 species a day, with the rate increasing steadily over this period of time."

Deforestation and the diversity of life were two of the global issues discussed at a five-day symposium sponsored by the National Geographic Society on the occasion of its centennial in January. Scholars and scientists from around the world evaluated the last 100 years of developments in their fields, and tried to look into the future.

Symposium chairman Russell W. Peterson, former president of the National Audubon Society, predicted continuing pressure on earth's dwindling natural resources. "To see that the overall annual demand for resources doesn't take more from the Earth's natural systems than they can replenish annually is the prime challenge to providing a sustainable and decent quality of life for future generations," he said.

Workers saw logs from mahogany tree

The scientists agreed that the continued destruction of tropical forests could impoverish future generations.

Thousands of rain-forest plants could provide food if their properties could be fully explored and brought into cultivation, says Raven. "Beyond the development of additional kinds of plants as sources of food," he says, "other plants offer extraordinary possibilities as sources of medicines, oils, waxes, fibers, and other commodities of interest to our modern industrial society."

To realize these possibilities, the rich reservoir of genetic traits still in the forests should be protected, say many scientists. The tropical mass of plants, insects, fungi, and bacteria is the main repository of Earth's gene pool, a memory bank of information evolved over billions of years and still largely unexploited.

For instance, farmers may some day need to fall back on wild strains of food crops like coffee to resist epidemics of disease or insect infestations. Industries may come to the rain forest to exploit such biochemical marvels as the copaiba tree, which naturally produces a liquid similar to diesel fuel.

Yet, the price of diversity for the rain forests is their relative vulnerability. Since no two are the same — not even parts of the same forest — the destruction of even a small area can result in the extinction of many species.

Most experts agree that the tide of extinction could be turned by intelligent use of the remaining forests.

"Substantial natural areas," says Raven, "should be included as an integral part of all development plans, to serve as parks and reserves, natural sources of germ plasm, and as means for facilitating the maintenance of air and water quality and for erosion control.

In addition, we should redouble our efforts to create facilities such as seed banks, where species can be preserved even if their habitats are destroyed.

"For many reasons, the support of industrial nations for sound development in the tropics should be viewed as a matter of self-interest, and not just charity. The degree of success will play a large role in determining the characteristics of the world in the next few decades."

The circulatory system of the human body contains about 60,000 miles of blood vessels and capillaries.

School notes

by phyllis nissen

-Woburn's new homework policy means more homework for parents. Adopted recently by the School Committee and drawn up by Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum Louise Nolan, the policy includes fail-safe measures designed to facilitate the work of teachers, students and parents - so that everyone who follows it feels success.

When school begins, teachers in each grade will send home a letter to students and parents, stating how often and what types of homework will be given, and how it will be graded. Middle school students will be given a daily assignment notebook which teachers sign at the close of school and which parents sign when work is completed.

Nolan considers it very important the student understand what is expected before he or she leaves school for the day.

Parents can help by providing a quiet, no distractions homework area at home and by subdividing longterm assignments, such as research papers; and marking interim due dates on a calendar. Make room on that refrigerator door.

-Big changes, little people, less homework for teachers: Wilmington kindergarten students will participate in a pilot program this year in response to their teachers' request for a continuous block of preparation time during the "school day."

A four-to-two School Committee vote has the youngsters beginning school the first Monday after the Wednesday opening "in order to become better oriented to the classroom and bus routes"; and going home early each Wednesday.

"If we change the policy for one person, we will have to change it for everybody." That's the thought on the emotional challenges to Burlington's new school age entrance policy which have been appearing for what seems months already.

According to the new policy, effective this September, a child entering kindergarten must be five years old by October 31. However, effective next September, a child must be five by August 31, 1990. The former cutoff date was December 31.

Parental input will be considered every step of the way.

-For the first time ever, circulation in the Reading Public Library Children's Room topped 100,000 this summer.

-Students speak up - excellence at work: Garth Pitman of Stoneham has been awarded Northeastern University's liberal arts part-time division Excellence in Teaching Award.

The English Department chair in the Newburyport Regional School System, Pitman was recently honored for 20 years of teaching at University College. Honored, selected and voted to the top - by his students.

-Outstanding North Reading School Department employees may soon be recognized throughout the year for their work - and that could mean custodians, cafeteria workers, teacher aides, and secretaries - as well as teachers. Those honors will become reality as soon as an "equitable" awards program which pleases everyone finds its way clear of the suggestion box.

MOVIE REVIEWS *Rochele Flynn"Let it Ride"

and Short Takes

"Let it Ride" Starring Richard Dreyfuss, David Johansen, Teri Garr. Directed by Joe Pytko. Produced by David Giler. Screenplay by Ernest Morton. Based on the book "Good Vibes" by Jay Cronley. Rated PG-13.

It's a strange journey, because even after sitting through all 90 minutes of "Let it Ride," you still don't feel as if you've seen a movie. At least, not a whole movie. Bits and pieces here and there, some interesting, some just plain corny. But all those pieces don't add up to the wild comedy the ads are telling you this is.

Richard Dreyfuss plays a compulsive gambler who has promised his wife he will stop. It's all part of a plan to reconcile their separation and begin life again as a couple. But the morning Dreyfuss is supposed to move back home, he's no where to be found. That's because his pal, a fellow cab driver played by David Johansen, overheard a "sure thing" in his cab, and passed the tip on to Dreyfuss, who plays a character called Trotter.

Trotter has a theory that everyone has at least one lucky day, they just have to know when to recognize it. He figures it would be folly to look this gift horse in the mouth, so to speak, and ignores the well-laid plans made with his wife. Instead, he heads to the track and places one $50 win ticket. Which, of course, pays off.

The rest of his day at the track is spent with both the losers, his peers, at a dump of a bar across from the track and, as his winnings continue, at the jockey club with the rich and neurotic. It's just that the focus is rather blurry. It seems to be less about Trotter's gambling obsession and his need to deal with it than on the oddballs he surrounds himself with. It's just not clear whether he wants to reason out his addiction, or if he is just trying to figure out what makes some people losers.

This is the first time director Joe Pytko has been out of the feature film starting gate, having directed music videos, commercials and documentaries. He went for a decidedly artsy style that frankly makes the picture look rather cheesy. Close-ups only mean a lot of talking heads and many of the outdoor scenes could have been shot for television. Most of the scenes lie flat, lacking scope and vibrancy which could have picked things up a bit, although the horse racing scenes have a more exciting edge to them.

What makes this film tolerable is that the people Trotter encounters during his day at a South Florida track are off-beat and probably true examples of chronic gamblers everywhere. These are people who all believe in "their" system, their hope that someday they too will be hot like Trotter, have their own winning streak. They love his courage, his ability to take that one $50 bet and parlay it into a fortune by letting the money ride.

The people with whom Trotter spends the day are, in many ways, more interesting, or at least more quirky, than Trotter. Jennifer Tilly (Meg's sister) is like a gust of fresh and funny air amidst all that stale smoke of the Jockey Club. Decked out in a sexy, red dress and speaking in a breathy, sex-kittenish whisper we haven't heard since the early Sixties, she turns out to be the one really kind, sincere person Trotter encounters at the track.

Turning in an interesting performance, perhaps the best in the film, is David Johansen, also known in the music world by his alter ego, Buster Poindexter, leader of Banshees of the Blue. Johansen, whose last part was also as a cab driver in "Scrooged," is a loose cannon, an amusing combination of naive and cynicism. It is Teri Garr who ends up with the thankless role of bitchy wife. Her comic talent is wasted here and she's portrayed quite unsympathetically. Of everyone in the film, she's the one who deserves a break, having lived for many years with a compulsive gambler.

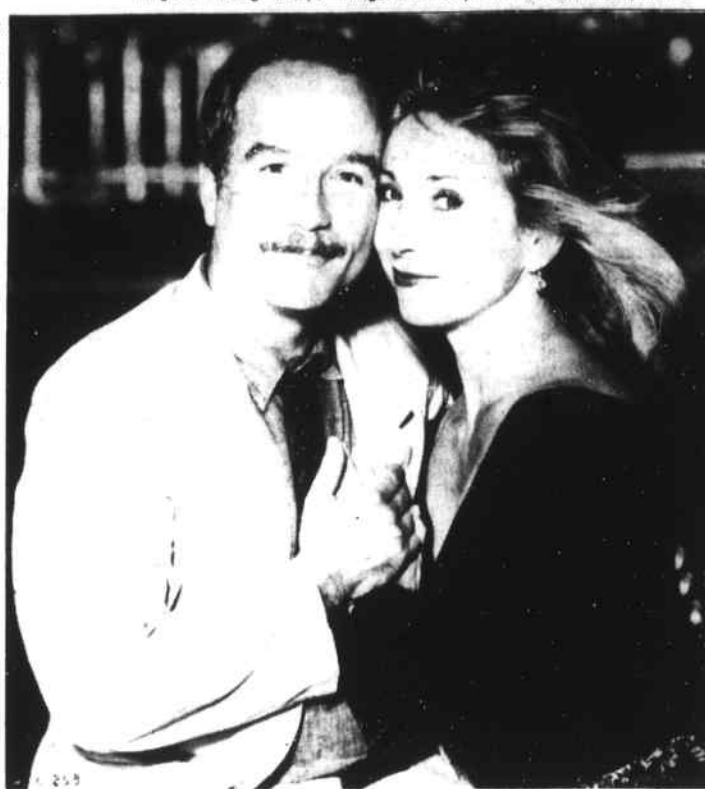

Since the plot is secondary to the characterization, we should probably connect in some way with Trotter, a desperate little schmuck trying to find the meaning of life on a seedy race track. But Dreyfuss plays the character with a nasty edge that makes him none too endearing, even as he continues to win.

Even if I had liked Dreyfuss' role, the film doesn't work simply because it's a stretch away from reality. Sure, a person can be lucky, can hit the horses, up to a point. But if the director and writer were going for an off-beat, slightly surrealistic movie, they shouldn't have finished with a typical Hollywood happy ending. It refutes what you think Trotter has begun to learn about his addiction by telling us that everything works out in the end.

Another reason the ending appears to have been tacked on from elsewhere is that this isn't a movie with a typical beginning, middle, end. It plays out more like a series of vignettes, made all the more unusual by over-dubbings of Trotter's thoughts on what people earn at the track - from the fortune teller to the shoe-shine guy. It's an interesting idea, but a movie about a hard-edged, not altogether nice gambler would have worked better with a low-budget, independent film starring John Doe from Topeka. Then no one would have felt the need to wind down with an ending right out of fairy tale land.

SHORT TAKES

CASUALTIES OF WAR is an intense, explosive drama set in the Vietnam War. It revolves around the abduction, rape and murder of a Vietnamese woman by an American troop, and the man who fought to have criminal charges brought against his fellow GI's. Like much of the war itself, this is a story not so much about black and white issues, but about all the shades of grey inbetween. Probably the best film Brian De Palma has ever directed, it features stand out performances by Sean Penn and, surprisingly, Michael J. Fox, who proves he is capable of much more than just being cute. Rated R. ****

THE ABYSS is a Big movie - lots of effects, lots of plot, lots of overkill. You get the impression that somewhere in there is a really great movie, but writer/director James Cameron so overworked this underwater action/adventure that the good stuff kind of gets lost in the shuffle. When he sticks to the clash of personalities in an undersea crisis, than the film is primo. When we get to the mystical underwater aliens subplot, however, things get rather soggy. Rated PG-13. **

SEX, LIES AND VIDEO TAPE is an erotic, funny, adult flick that manages to be sexy without being explicit. Neat trick. James Spader gives a mesmerizing performance as the catalyst which shakes up four people in not very healthy relationships. Andie MacDowell is sweetly funny as the unfulfilled, repressed housewife who finds strange comfort in a friendship with Spader, her husband's old college buddy. Rated R ****

TURNER AND HOOD is a dog of a movie in more ways than one. It stars a dog, has a dog's name in the title and has about as much entertainment value as a flea collar. Tom Hanks plays a neatnik detective whose life is disrupted by a large, ugly, drooling "witness" to a murder. Hanks hopes the dog will recognize the scent of the thug who killed his master. The plot is fairly weak and the dribbling dog is really kind of gross. The only saving grace in Hanks' performance and actress Mare Winningham, a strong, personable actress. Rated PG. *1/2

PARENTHOOD is a bitter-sweet life lesson from director Ron Howard that's as delightful as it is touching. It weaves together the messy, frayed lives of four generations of the Buckman family, with eldest son Steve Martin displaying the dramatic range we always knew he had. Only Dianne Wiest tops his performance as a divorcee trying to keep the pain down to a tolerable level as she deals with her two screwy kids. The plot is a bit meandering, but even if this movie doesn't have a whole lot of plot, it has a whole lot of heart. Rated PG13. ***1/2

FOR POOLS, LAWNS &amp; MORE

Remember how hot it was last summer? How dry your lawn became? If you're hooked up to a municipal water supply you can expect to have to curtail your use of water this year... but not if you have your own source of unlimited water on your own property... wash the car all you want; the lawn will get plenty of water to stay green all summer; the swimming pool will be full and fresh all summer. These are just a few of the many benefits you'll receive when you have your on-site well installed on your property by Avellino General Contractors. We'll install a modern, high-tech well in your own back yard and at a price that will surprise you. There's water to use right under your property... so take advantage of it now by calling Avellino General Contractors at 617-944-5454, before water restrictions leave you out to dry.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

As I continue to walk the bounds of the Middlesex East area, I meet many wonderful people, even some who think the jokes in this column are the comiest they have ever read. I spent over an hour yesterday talking to Richard Crowell. He was a merchant seaman for over 30 years, then became a lobster fisherman and is now retired. He told me that he was born in Nova Scotia. When I mentioned the names of some boat builders I worked with in the Boston Naval Shipyard he told me that two of them are his cousins.

Folks, I do solemnly swear and affirm that I, Woodchipper, have never met any finer men and women than those from that little bit of Heaven, Nova Scotia. They are hard workers, honest, and above all else, people of integrity. (I know that because I worked with them for 19 years). Furthermore, a cosmetic company would go out of business in Newfoundland, Nova Scotia or Prince Edward Island because the women there have "natural beauty." As I walk the bounds, I hope to meet many more like Richard Crowell.

My friend, Billy Drover, said to his wife, Nora, "I'd swim the deepest river, cross the longest desert and climb the highest mountain to prove my love for you." Nora divorced Billy two months later, claiming that her husband was never home.

Marcel Giguere was, for many years, the bell ringer at the Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris, France. He could be depended upon to pull the rope that rang the bell each and every hour of his working day. His twin brother, Richard, took his place when Marcel went on vacation. One morning Richard was almost late climbing the steps to the bell tower, so he ran to pull the rope, missed his footing and fell to the ground. A crowd formed around the poor soul, then a Gendarme (a policeman) worked his way to the fallen man and said, "Who is he? Does anyone know him?" An old gentleman took a closer look then exclaimed, "Sacri Bleu, he looks like a 'dead ringer' for the bell ringer of Notre Dame."

Kathy was looking over the "want ads" in the Times Chronicle. "Here it is," she shouted. "Here's what?" I asked. "The part-time job I've always wanted." "Look!" I shouted. "You just take care of the cooking, washing and other housework. I don't want any wife of mine to do any work." Mary O'Hara called her son and said, "Happy Birthday, Eddie." "For crying out loud," Eddie exclaimed. "Why are you calling me up at 2 in the morning, couldn't you wait until later?" "Well, Eddie," Mary said, "You woke me up at this hour on your very first birthday." Note, Eddie O'Hara is 40 years old and a former State Trooper.

My friend, Tommy Doherty, was sitting on the side of a pier holding a fishing line. A man stopped and asked, "Catch any fish?" "Nope." "What kind of bait are you using?" "None." "How the heck do you expect to catch any fish?" "I don't care," responded

Tommy. "I was sitting on that bench yesterday for over three hours and not one person stopped to talk to me. So far you are the tenth person to ask me if I've caught any fish."

Folks, being lonely and ignored is no joke. One feels like a freight car abandoned on a railroad siding. A husband and wife touring through the back hills of West Virginia saw a sign "Antiques." They stopped, knocked at the door and were welcomed warmly by two old ladies. When the visitors asked, "Where are the antiques?" one of the old ladies answered sheepishly, "We are the antiques." Then over a cup of tea they confessed to their trick. They were lonely. They had no relatives, just a few friends and practically no visitors. They came up with the idea of putting out a sign - Antiques - knowing that people who like antiques are usually nice people. "Notice," said one of the ladies, "we don't say they are for sale." The other lady added, "We really meet a lot of nice people. And we feel that God doesn't mind our little trick."

Whenever I tell anyone that I don't like (in fact I hate) this so-called modern music they tell me that I'm getting old. That is why I was not surprised when at a recent wedding reception I attended a waiter dropped a big tray of dishes and my nieces and nephews (all teenagers) jumped up and started to dance. Actually the tray of dishes slamming to the floor sounded better than the band music later.

Rowan Fitzgerald told a reporter that the secret of his long life is making sure that he wakes up every morning. "And what is your formula for accomplishing that, sir?" the reporter asked. "Well," Rowan replied, "living a clean life helps - but - the most important thing is to drink a lot of water before retiring at night. Then you'll have to wake up the next morning."

Personality Winners: Massachusetts State Police Cpl. Joseph F. Howley, stationed at Headquarters, has asked me to convey his congratulations to the people of Winchester in general and the parishioners of St. Eulalia's Church in particular, for their new Associate Pastor, Rev. Thomas Foley. He was formerly assigned to St. Martha and Mary Church in Lakeville, of which Cpl. Howley and his family are parishioners. A State Trooper's word is good enough for me, so welcome to Woodchips, Rev. Thomas Foley. You are indeed a personality winner, also your dear grandmother, Anna Foley, of Winchester. Other winners are: Officer Jerry Scallie; Firefighters, William Lavacchia, Bill Sweeney and Stephen Pihl, Orrin W. Ellis, Jay and Brian Boyle, Rev. Michele Rogers-Brigham all of Woburn; Scott Davis, Dick and Lois Midwood and Karole McLaughlin, all of Reading; Jon Sutherby, Carol Johnson, Bill Cerretani, Lisa Cavalieri, all of Wakefield; Susan Alger, Robert Haggerty, Eric Dimmick, Trygve Swift, George Theriault, Mario DiMino, all of Stoneham. Also,

Andrea Hayden, Paul DeFronzo, Midge Reardon Bishop, Leo and Leslie Forester, Ed and Linda Roth and Americo Enos, all of Wilmington; Bob and June Fowler, Shirley and Maureen McGurn, all of Tewksbury; and Stephen J. Daly, Rev. Charles Neugebauer, Ellie McIntire, Richard Spindler, Robert Aldenberg and Albert E. Sylvia, all of North Reading.

Folks, I would like to share with you a typical day at my house on the beach. I got up at the usual 6 a.m. I made my own breakfast and was eating when Kathy came in the kitchen. Her hair was up in curlers, there was a ton of cold cream and oil on her face and she was wearing an old house dress. I greeted her with, "Good morning, Kathy." She replied with her standard, "Oh shut up!" I forgave her because most times with all that junk on her, she slides out of bed - sometimes landing on her head. "What's that noise?" she asked. "It's rubbish collection day." She picked up a loaded waste-basket and ran out the door, just as the truck was about to move away. "Hey, mister," she shouted, "am I too late for the rubbish?" The foreman took one look at her and said, "No, jump in lady!"

I called my two Golden Retrievers and was on the beach in two minutes. I met George Gould who said, "I wonder what breed of dog this fellow coming towards us has on a leash?" "What breed of dog is that?" George asked when the man got close. "Part Irish Setter and part Monkey." "Fancy that, Woodchipper, he's related to both of us!" More later folks.

Super Star is Joan Gaffney of Woburn.

Kid's fall fashions mimic grown-up styles this year

By United Press International

This fall, there doesn't seem to be much difference between clothing for adults and for children, perhaps because of the overwhelming classic influence — or maybe because kids are more fashion-conscious than ever.

Vests, cardigans and jumpers are the key items for kids this season, especially noteworthy for their versatility and ability to stretch any clothing budget. The Sewing Fashion Council reports that the average yearly clothing costs for a 5-to-10-year-old can approach $2,500.

"Easy to sew cardigans and vests can replace jackets and look great over a variety of tops," said Caryl Svendsen of the Sewing Fashion Council. "One jumper pattern can be altered for skirts, pants and rompers, creating a cost-effective variety of new school looks."

But parents who prefer department store racks to do-it-yourself will find similar items this fall. Sophisticated fun is the theme of the season.

For boys there are brightly colored tartan and plaid fabrics, safari pants and jeans that sport the popular distressed look. For girls, the black-and-white or black-and-bright look goes to the head of the class.

Clothing manufacturer Le Roi offers several new looks. The "Just Dandy" line gives girls a chance to adopt a menswear look with patterns of black and white — houndstooth checks and stripes — combined with feminine trims such as eyelet, velvet, ribbon and bows.

Le Roi also offers an Oriental influence for girls with fabric patterns featuring Chinese figures with bright, ornate trimmings.

The classic look is reflected in Le Roi's "Villager Country" collection focusing on color, texture and novelty yarns in cotton styles with simple patterns of delicate floral embroideries.

Designer Diane Von Furstenberg, however, expresses a different philosophy.

"I believe little girls should dress like little girls, not like miniature versions of their big sisters or mothers," she says. To that end, Von Furstenberg has created a group of striped and solid knit dresses adorned with colorful bows and heart-shaped buttons.

Another Von Furstenberg innovation is "Skeggings," a skirt-and-legging set, which she says "are the ideal answer for today's active little girls."

Still, her collection includes some classic styles for girls, including the ever-popular jumper, and a dropped-waist dress with a double-flounced skirt. Two-piece sets are available in gray and pink, red and black and hot pink and turquoise.

Danskin makes a major splash for girls this fall with its "Electric Brights" line of T-shirts, tanks, leotards and unitards for activewear, in colors ranging from hot tones of pink, yellow and lime to cool hues of blue and lavender.

Ralph Lauren's Polo Collection for boys focuses on several themes from sophisticated to sporty. Oxford cloth shirts are updated with a new "University Shield Crest" and an oversized fit. In the tradition of rugby shirts, Lauren offers the Bedford mesh shirt, a long-sleeved, placket-collared number in a heavyweight knit fabric.

Varsity wool sweaters and richly colored corduroys also are part of the Lauren fall line, in colors ranging from ivory, wine and navy to bright-toned sportswear in red, gold, white and black. Of course, there's plenty of denim in the "Roughwear" collection, along with richly textured sweaters and jackets in muted earth tones.

One truly cool look, however, belongs to "The Snoopy Collection" marketed by J.G. Hook. Generations of readers of the popular "Peanuts" comic strip have enjoyed the free-spirited beagle express his many personalities: World War I flying ace, Beagle Scout leader and campus maven Joe Cool.

Now they can wear "cool-prep" classics: a varsity jacket with a Snoopy applied graphic; a black and white striped oversized sweatshirt with "Joe Cool's" countenance emblazoned on the front; and an oversize sweater with intarsia graphic and appliqued detail.

Other "Joe Cool" street-chic items include plaid pleated skirts, big shirts, tennis cardigans and knee socks.

"Strong sales have already indicated that the new collection will be extremely successful," said Lance Walsky, president of United Stars of America, the licensed character apparel division of J.G. Hook.

H & R BLOCK to offer Tax Training School throughout Essex and Middlesex Counties

H & R Block, the world's largest Income Tax Preparation Service, is offering a basic Income Tax course starting September 6, 1989, with morning, evening and Saturday classes.

During the thirteen week course, students will explore all phases of individual Income Tax preparation and receive actual experience in preparing individual Income Tax returns. There is a classroom lecture on each subject and practice problems at every level. The course is designed to teach students increasingly complex tax problems as study progresses.

Anyone may enroll. There are no restrictions or qualifications. Courses are ideally suited for housewives, retired persons, teachers or persons wanting to increase their personal tax knowledge.

Qualified course graduates may be offered job interviews for positions with H & R Block. Many accept employment. H & R Block recruits 98% of its work force from these classes. However, H & R Block is under no obligation to offer employment. Not are graduates under any obligation to accept employment with H & R Block.

Registration forms and a brochure for the Income Tax course may be obtained by calling 1-800-346-0035 in Massachusetts or 1-508-686-1371 for interested individuals outside of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Dance student to tour U.S.

Susannah Collins, a student and teacher at Ellens School of Dance in Billerica was selected from thousands of young dancers nationwide to tour with the Professional Dance Caravan during the summer of 1990.

Dance Caravan tours the country for six weeks every summer. It is a Dance Convention which features the finest professional faculty nationwide. Susannah will be among the 30 students selected to be "Caravan Kids." The "Caravan Kids" take lessons, assist, and perform with these master teachers. It is the opportunity of a lifetime for a young aspiring dancer. Among the cities they will be touring are Las Vegas, Disney World, New York City, Los Angeles and Chicago.

This opportunity arose for Susannah recently when Ellen's School of Dance took 12 of its students on an all expense paid trip to the Dance Convention in New York City for five days.

While attending the convention, Susannah auditioned for the faculty of Dance Caravan and was selected from amongst thousands of dancers.

Susannah is 19 years old, resides in Billerica, and has attended Ellens School of Dance for seven years.

Ellens School of Dance has supported many unique opportunities for their students and has held fund-raisers to help defray the cost. Susannah will need $5,000 to cover travel expenses as a "Caravan Kid" and Ellens School of Dance intends to assist her and to hold various fund-raisers to help support her in her endeavor.

This will certainly be a once in a lifetime experience for Susannah as are many of the opportunities Ellens School of Dance provides for its students.

The teachers at Ellens School

SUSANNAH COLLINS, selected to tour with the Professional Dance Caravan for the summer of 1990.

of Dance; Ellen Enos, Laurie Enos Pandolfo, and Lorine Keats are very proud of Susannah and wish her congratulations and good luck.

Crayon and paper: where children's dreams fly

By JOE FASBINDER
United Press International

They want to cure AIDS, to end homelessness and to build robots who will be helpers and friends. They also want the opportunity to pull money off trees.

Most of all, if the pictures they draw are an accurate indication, American children want a pet — preferably a dog.

Eddie Pistolesi judged nearly 30,000 entries to the Crayola National Coloring Event last year. The contest's theme for 1988 was "Wishes are Windows to a Child's Imagination."

Pistolesi, a spokeswoman for Binney & Smith Inc., maker of Crayola Crayons, had the task of helping to choose the winners. "It wasn't easy," she said.

The 1988 top prizes were two $50,000 college scholarships. Another 500 prizewinners received a 5-foot replica Crayola and an Adidas sweatshirt. Every single entrant received a poster.

"This is the most prize-filled event that I know of. Every child gets a prize," Pistolesi said.

The 2-year-old contest, which Binney & Smith hopes to make an annual event, chooses a theme and children are invited to draw their interpretation of it. In 1987 the challenge was to "Create Your Vision of the Future."

The 1989 theme is called "Share Your World." The top prizes are two $25,000 scholarships, reduced from the amounts awarded previously.

The idea of the 1989 competition is to get kids to express any vision they have of the world. "It could be something as basic as your backyard or your room or a tree," said Pistolesi, or "a place in your imagination, a place to dream about, a place to make better."

Making things better is a common theme in the artwork submitted to the Crayola National Coloring Event. "Kids have a very strong social conscience," said Pistolesi. "I wouldn't be surprised to see places without crime and drugs and war."

Entries also can be whimsical, such as the 1988 winner in the 8-to-12 category, drawn by Hillary Frank, 12, of Westport, Conn. The picture included a caption that said, "I Wish Everything I Drew Would Come to Life."

It is a picture of a girl — who looks remarkably like Hillary — drawing "The Original Birdolphish" on a canvas. Behind her stands the Birdolphish, made real by her efforts.

Whimsical could also describe the 1988 winner in the 7-and-under category. Darcy Shoop, 4, of Rocky Hill, Conn., depicted Tinkerbell, flying through her window to play.

Other kids wished for vacations, to be pro football stars and to have friends around the world. Anthony Frey of Cincinnati, Ohio, said, "I wish I could dress up in an animal costume like a monkey, so the animals wouldn't know I was there."

"Many of them stick in my mind," said Pistolesi. "Every year there are several which are very moving. I'm moved by the awareness of the environment and I bet we get a lot of entries because of the oil spill in Alaska."

Other poignant entries involve medical wastes washing up on shore, homelessness and hunger.

One kid just wanted an end to allergies so all kids could have pets.

"There's a lot of subtle, dry humor in many of these. Kids are more complex and sophisticated than we think," said Pistolesi.

"Kids can come up with profound ideas that they can express visually that they can't express verbally. Kids who have little to say out loud can express things in pictures."

With such a dizzying array of entries, picking just two as grand prize winners is difficult, said Pistolesi.

"What I look for is not the most magnificently drawn entry, but the idea and the thought," she said. "It's tough. The best prize does not necessarily go to the best artist, but to the most unique way of expressing an idea."

The competition, she said, has "hit a lot of kids on the creativity button, so to speak." Still, a lot of entries repeat the same idea.

"We've had some wonderful pictures in which kids wanted to fly," said Pistolesi. "They were shown flying over their houses and cities. There are a lot of kids who love dinosaurs."

A picture drawn by an Iowa boy reminds other kids who would fly that they should stay out of Venus flytraps. An Ohio youth drew himself having a picnic with a Tyrannosaurus rex, a triceratops and pterodactyl, faithfully depicted, but in fanciful colors.

"It's important to remember that every kid is a winner," said Pistolesi. "It's just that two of them, every year, get blown away by what they win."

Those interested in competing in the Crayola National Coloring Event can request an official entry form from either a participating Crayola products dealer, or by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Crayola National Coloring Event, P.O. Box 598, Easton, PA 18044-0598.

Basketball at Boston Garden

TRENTON, N.J. — To Joe Scardone there's only one basketball team — the Boston Celtics.

Scardone's love affair for the Celtics and the Boston Garden was sparked as a youngster when he spent his summers near Boston.

On a recent weekend, Scardone, 31, got to feel like a kid again. Accepting an offer from the makers of Winston cigarettes, Scardone and a group of friends from Trenton travelled to Boston to literally play out a fantasy. They become Boston Celtics.

Scardone and nine friends bought the "game" at the Garden from the Winston Sports Connection Collection, a catalogue that offers adults sports merchandise and unique sports experiences.

"When I saw this in the catalogue, I knew this would be a great once-in-a-life-time thing for my buddies and me," he said. "Even though some of us are in our mid-30s, we still play basketball and we love the Celtics."

For Scardone, just standing at center court at one of the most famous sports arenas in the world was thrill enough.

"It was incredible," said Scardone. "Being a Celtics fan all my life and to look around and say, 'I'm really here.'"

But Scardone did more than gawk. The teams played two hours of full-speed basketball, running up and down the same court as their biggest sports idols.

The group divided into two teams—Scardone's team, of course, choosing to be the Celtics. The opposing group uniforms for the Los Angeles Lakers.

After dressing in the Boston Garden visitors locker room, both teams took to the courts for two full games, complete with plays, foul calls and three-point shots.

As part of the package arranged by R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., the games were recorded on videotape, in much the same style as a television crew might follow a pro basketball game.

Scardone and his friends were accompanied by their wives who cheered the husbands, took hundreds of pictures and were featured in video interviews along with each "player."

Scardone and his friends split the $2,500 cost of the package for the Garden. Each player paid for travel and accommodations in Boston.

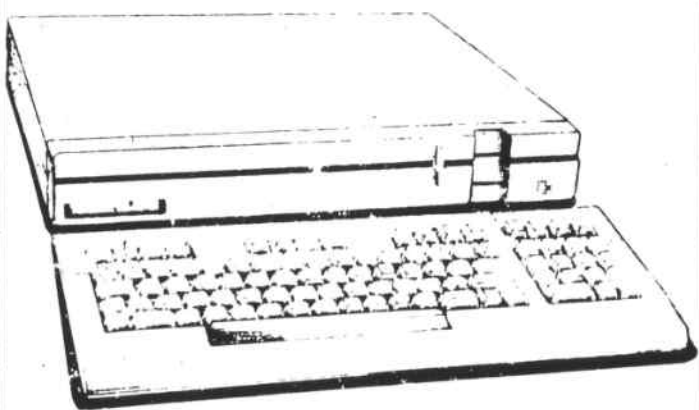

Scardone said he's still hearing from friends and co-workers at General Motors about his weekend.

-An Arts & Entertainment Update-

SPARTAN

GREAT WOODS SUMMER SERIES CONCERTS

Concerts by Tom Petty & The Heartbreakers, Ray Charles, and Cher are scheduled for the September 2 to September 10 period of the Great Woods Summer Series.

TOM PETTY & THE HEARTBREAKERS come to Great Woods on Friday, September 8. Petty & The Heartbreakers is a band known the world over for its rollicking, blues-tempered performances. The group has had hit singles, including "Don't Do Me Like That," "American Girl" and "You Got Lucky," and several Top Ten albums, including the three-million selling Damn the Torpedoes LP.

Tickets for the September 8 concert are priced at $17.50 for reserved seating and $16 for the lawn.

RAY CHARLES, pianist and master of soul, comes to Great Woods on Saturday, September 2. A legendary performer whose career spans four decades, Charles has been considered the virtual inventor of soul music, having brought together the fervor of gospel, the narratives of blues and country, the big-band arrangements of jazz and rhythms from all of them. Of his many hits over the years, perhaps the song he is best known for is "Georgia On My Mind." His rendition was chosen as the Official Song of his home state of Georgia, an honor he considers to be one of the highlights of his career. Special Guests will be BETTY CARTER. Tickets for this concert are priced at $25, $22.50 and $20 for reserved seating and $15 for the lawn.

CHER, the actress and recording star who is one of the most colorful personalities in the entertainment business, comes to Great Woods for a rare concert performance on Sunday, September 3. Cher first found fame as a 1960's pop star. Joined by her then husband, Sonny Bono, they had such hits as "I Got You, Babe" and "The Beat Goes On." She hit the top of the charts in the Seventies as a solo act with "Gypsies, Tramps and Thieves" and "Half-Breed." Crossing-over to films, she has now become one of the most respected actresses of the Eighties, winning the Best Actress Oscar for her work in Moonstruck.

On September 9, Community Boating on the Charles River in Boston is offering free sailing and instruction to the public. Guests can sail with an experienced sailor. Over 100 boats.

Sailing hours will be from 9 a.m. to sunset. Free coffee and donuts will be served. If you are under 18 you must show proof of swimming ability. (Call for details.) Community Boating is located on the Charles River behind the Hatch Shell on the Red Line Charles Station T.

Free parking on Storrow Drive West in front of the boathouse. Call 523-1038 for more information.

FRANK, LIZA & SAMMY THE ULTIMATE EVENT

Frank, Liza, and Sammy bring their Ultimate Event Concert to the Boston Garden on Tuesday, October 3 at 7:30 p.m. This event is staged in-the-round with giant video screens so that every seat in the Garden is a great seat. Tickets went on sale Monday, August 28 at all Ticketron outlets and the Boston Garden Box Office. By phone, call Teletron at 720-3434 for information call the Boston Garden at 227-3200. The popular-price tickets are $50 and $35.50.

The evening's theme, "In Concert Together" will generate proceeds to benefit the Anti-Defamation League, New England Region; Catholic Charities, Boston Regional Office; and the Jewish Community Center of Greater Boston. For further information about benefit tickets which are $350, $200 and $100, call 330-9682.

NAVY FRIGATE IS OPEN TO PUBLIC

BOSTON - Visitors to the Charlestown Navy Yard may "Tripp" over an interesting sight on September 16 and 17, a U.S. Navy frigate.

USS Trippe (FF-1072) will be open for the public visiting a Pier 4, Charlestown Navy Yard September 16 and 17 from noon to 6 p.m. The visit coincides with the City of Boston's Harborpark Day (September 16th).

Tripp is a Knox Class frigate; 438 feet long, a beam (width) of 47 feet and 320 member crew. Primarily an anti-submarine warfare platform. Tripp is armed with Harpoon and Sea Sparrow missiles, Anti-submarine Rockets, a five inch/54-caliber gun, torpedoes. Tripp will have a SH2 Seasprite (anti-submarine) helicopter aboard during her visit to Boston.

USS Trippe is commanded by Commander W.J. Woerman and is homeported in Newport, R.I.

DANCE FROM JAPAN IN BOSTON

Dance Umbrella will launch its fall season on September 29 with the next wave of avant-garde dance from Japan, Company Karas with Saburo Teshigawara. The exclusive U.S. performance of Company Karas with Saburo Teshigawara, Japan's major new choreographic voice, will be performed at the Emerson Majestic Theatre, 217 Tremont Street, on September 29 and 30 at 8 p.m. and October 1 at 3 p.m.

In his U.S. debut, Teshigawara will stage his crowning choreographic achievement, the striking evening-length work "Ishi No-Hana (Flower of Stone)," which he performs with Karas, a group of seven dancers. In "Ishi No-Hana," Teshigawara opens a door to a secret garden unleashing a dream world of surrealistic images: a child dragonfly, imperial bicycles, an enormous goldfish, a woman chrysalis, ancient warriors.

Tickets for company Karas with Teshigawara are $20 and $15 (Senior and students receive a 15 percent discount on the day of the performance.) Beginning August 21, tickets can be purchased at all Ticketron locations, Boston in Faneuil Hall, and Out of Town Tickets in Harvard Square. To charge tickets call 617-720-3434.

Company Karas with Saburo Teshigawara is sponsored by the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities. Dance Umbrella's fall season is sponsored in part by the National Endowment for the Arts.
